—Narendra Modi, Prime Minister

"Thank you to my brothers and sisters in Keralam for a truly decisive mandate. Congratulations to every UDF leader and worker for a hard-fought, well-run campaign. As I said before, Keralam has the talent, Keralam has the potential and now Keralam has a UDF government with a vision to harness both. I look forward to seeing my Keralam family soon.
—Rahul Gandhi, Cong leader

"Do you think this is a victory? It is an immoral victory, not a moral victory. Whatever the Election Commission has done, along with the Central Forces and the PM & Home Minister, is totally illegal. It is loot, loot, loot. We will bounce back.
—Mamata Banerjeei, CM & TMC chairperson

"The people have voted for a new kind of politics. This is not just a victory; it is a mandate for change

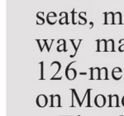
BIGGEST WINNERS

BJP: One more state, one more victory - the party has returned to its winning ways after a brief setback in the 2024 Lok Sabha polls when it failed to reach the majority on its own. A government in West Bengal is a huge shot in the arm for the party which had been trying to carve out a political space for itself in the state. It's also a major ideological boost for BJP, which has usually struggled in the Left-dominant political climate of Bengal. In Assam, BJP gained more ground and is set to clinch nearly 100 seats along with its allies, completely decimating the Gaurav Gogoi-led Congress. NDA now governs across 20 states/UTs out of 28 states and 8 UTs. Of these, BJP is the head of the government in 16.

VIJAY AND HIS MGR MOMENT: "Jana Nayagan" Vijay was the undisputed star of this election with his TVK delivering one of the most stunning performances on debut in India's political history, giving both AIADMK and DMK led factions a run for their money. The actor-turned-politician successfully converted his star power into seats, tapping into the voters' historical tendencies to place their faith into celebrities who take the political plunge.

CONGRESS IN KERALA: Though Congress failed to pose much challenge in other states, it delivered a resounding performance in Kerala. The UDF is leading in over 100 out of the 126 seats in the state with Congress alone ahead in 64 seats. This marks a comeback for the party in the state's power corridors after being in opposition for a decade. It also helps Congress secure a firm foothold in the south, with governments now in 3 states (Telangana and Karnataka being the other too) as it seeks to keep BJP at bay south of the Vindhyas.

MODI-SHAH DUO: The winning jodi of PM Modi and Amit Shah successfully added another key state to BJP's ever-growing portfolio, helping the party gain a firmer foothold in the east. Both Modi and Shah led the BJP's campaign in Bengal from the front in the absence of a strong local face, ensuring the Centre's messaging reached the voters and converted the anti-incumbency sentiment into actual results. Shah personally camped in Bengal in the last two weeks leading up to the high-voltage two phases, overseeing the party's intensive campaign to edge out Mamata.



HIMANTA BISWA SARMA: The Assam chief minister delivered a hattrick for BJP in the northeastern state, fighting the election on a clear cut agenda to target the infiltration issue, which has become a menace in the state. The firebrand leader left no stone unturned and did not shy away from making hardline statements, even controversial at times, to consolidate the core BJP base in the state. Despite raking up some controversies, he helped deliver Assam for BJP for a third time, now with an even bigger mandate.

RANGASWAMY: The AINRC led by chief minister N Rangasswamy easily retained the mandate in Puducherry, with leads in 21 of the 30 seats. The chief minister led the campaign from the front in alliance with BJP, successfully weathering the test of incumbency.

MODI THE NEW DADA OF BENGAL

The political map of India underwent a major political upheaval on Monday, with incumbent Chief Ministers MK Stalin in Tamil Nadu and Mamata Banerjee in West Bengal losing sitting seats in the assembly elections; In Kerala, CPI(M)-led LDF was swept out of power by Congress-led UDF; In Assam and Puducherry, the ruling alliance historically retained their forte.

Saffron storm dethrone Didi

KOLKATA

The moment the BJP has been waiting for has arrived - to capture the throne of Bengal.

In a major political development that could reshape the landscape of the 2029 Lok Sabha elections, the saffron party has secured a landslide victory in the 2026 West Bengal Assembly elections for the first time in history, ending Chief Minister Mamata Banerjee's 15-year reign and dismantling the Trinamool Congress bastion.

The victory, powered by a staggering and record-breaking voter turnout of 92.47%, signals a seismic shift in the state's identity, as the electorate chose the "Double Engine" promise of Modi over the "Bengali Pride" narrative of the TMC.

Further, ground reports also showed anti-incumbency against the TMC and its supremo Mamata Banerjee, just as it was against the 34-year-rule of the Left Front, led by Communist Party of India (Marxist). The record high voter turnout can also be attributed to the anti-incumbency factor.

7 KEY FACTORS that worked for BJP in Bengal

- Consolidation of Hindu votes
- Aggressive central leadership
- Organisational expansion, booth management
- Anti-incumbency and RG Kar case
- Welfare narrative vs 'appeasement' pitch
- Crackdown on infiltration

THIRUVANANTHAPURAM

The 2026 Kerala Assembly election has delivered a historic shift, with the Congress-led United Democratic Front (UDF) defeating the CPI(M)-led Left Democratic Front (LDF) after a decade in power.

Pinarayi Vijayan-led LDF came to power in Kerala in 2016, and it has become the last Communist Party government in the country.

More than a routine change of power in the state, this political shift signals the twilight of an ideological era. India's Left parties, long associated with communist governance, appear to have lost their final bastion of power for the first time since 1977, closing a long chapter that once saw the Left as a major force shaping the country's state and national politics.

In a wider context, this would leave no major state under Left rule for the first time in 49 years, marking what can be describe as the decimation of organized communism in Indian politics.

West Bengal had a Communist government from 1977 to 2011 — a record 34-year tenure that was ended by Mamata Banerjee-led TMC. The Left bloc had also ruled Tripura from 1993 to 2018, which was decimated by the BJP in 2018. The Left has suffered a steady downfall in Indian politics since the 2009 Lok Sabha elections.

With this election, the 'Red Map' of India has turned blank at the state level for the first time in modern history, closing a chapter that began with revolutionary zeal and endured through democratic persistence.

As counting progressed on Monday, trends indicated a commanding advantage for the UDF across Kerala constituencies. The alliance secured 97-100 seats, comfortably surpassing the halfway mark of 71 required to form the government.

In contrast, the LDF was restricted to approximately 38-41 seats, reflecting a significant erosion of its support base compared to the previous election.

The BJP-led NDA, despite efforts to expand its presence, managed to secure only 3 seats, while a small number of cons. Despite the broader trend, CM Vijayan retained his Dharmadam seat, though with a reduced margin.

3 lotuses bloom in Kerala

THIRUVANANTHAPURAM

The BJP registered a notable breakthrough in the 2026 Kerala Assembly elections, winning three seats – Nemom, Kazhakkoottam and Chathannoor – even as the Congress-led UDF swept to power in the state.

Rajeev Chandrasekhar has won Nemom, and with it, delivered the BJP its best result in Kerala. The party's state president reclaimed the Thiruvananthapuram constituency after a decade, polling 48,995 votes (40.35% vote share), the NDA's strongest performance in the state this election cycle. Nemom constituency in Thiruvananthapuram long considered the party's strongest foothold in Kerala. He defeated CPI(M) veteran and minister V Sivankutty by 3,590 votes, while Congress's young leader KS Sabarinathan finished third.

In Kazhakkoottam, another former Union Minister, V Muraleedharan, also emerged victorious, marking another significant gain for the BJP in the Thiruvananthapuram region. He defeated veteran (CPI(M) leader Kadakampally Surendran. Meanwhile, in Chathannoor, BJP candidate BB Gopakumar clinched the seat, defeating R Rajendran of CPI in a tightly contested race.

VIJAY FLIPS THE TN SCRIPT

CHENNAI

Actor-politician Vijay, who made his political debut with his Tamilaga Vettri Kazhagam (TVK), secured a historic win in the 2026 Tamil Nadu Assembly election Monday, breaking the entrenched Dravidian binary stretching back nearly six decades and confirming 'thalapathy' - 'commander' in Tamil - as the next big cinema-politics crossover.

The TVK won 107 seats in the 234-member Assembly. And one of those seats - Virugampakkam, which falls within the Chennai Lok Sabha constituency - will be held by R Sabarinathan.

But who is R Sabarinathan? He is the 30-year-old son of Vijay's driver and will follow the actor in making history in Tamil Nadu politics, adding his name to a list of incoming TVK MLAs with debut election wins. And he beat out the DMK's Prabhakara Raja and the AIADMK's Virugai Ravi - who won the seat in 2021 and 2016 respectively - by over 22,000 votes.

Meanwhile, elsewhere in TN high-profile DMK leaders fell by the dozens as the ruling party slipped to an embarrassing defeat. The list of names beaten included the biggest of all - Chief Minister MK Stalin, who was dumped out of his Kolathur stronghold by the TVK's VS Babu. However, Stalin's son, Udhayanidhi Stalin, fared better.

As for Vijay, the likely incoming Chief Minister, he enjoyed a hat-trick of wins today - his TVK swept the state and he won from Perambur (beating the DMK's RD Shekar by nearly 50,000 votes) and Tiruchirappalli (East) (beating the DMK's S Irudayaraj by around 23,000 votes.

BIGGEST LOSERS

MAMATA BANERJEE

The TMC supremo proved to be the biggest loser of this election with her party losing the only state where it was in power, raising fresh questions over its future and political relevance. With little to no presence beyond West Bengal, Mamata will have to contend with sitting in the opposition benches for at least the next five years. A loss of election also erodes her credibility as a viable opposition face to challenge the BJP, at least for now. Yet, given her street-fighter style of politics and deep-rooted connect in Bengal, Banerjee is far from being written off.

MK STALIN

The Tamil Nadu chief minister could not ensure another term in power despite taking BJP head-on as he asserted autonomy for his state. Stalin's consolidation of power and lack of structural reforms in health and education sectors dealt a serious blow to his alliance in this election. And with Vijay's rise as the new power centre in Tamil Nadu, DMK under Stalin will now face an uphill battle to maintain relevance and sustain the Dravidian legacy in the state.

PINARAYI VIJAYAN

The Left stalwart in Kerala could not last beyond a decade in the revolving door politics of the state. His government was weighed down by mounting anti-incumbency, allegations of corruption, the challenge posed by newer players such as BJP as well as criticism over the concentration of power within CPM.

GAURAV GOGOI

The Congress leader who was trying to pose a challenge to Himanta and sustain the legacy of his father, Tarun Gogoi, proved a non-starter in the end with the grand old party relegated to the sidelines in the state. Despite taking the fight to Himanta, Gogoi could not match up to BJP's deep booth-level machinery. He also failed to shrug off the dynastic tag bestowed on him by Himanta. To add insult to injury, Gogoi lost his assembly election debut from Jorhat.

AIADMK

The AIADMK faction, under Edappadi K Palaniswami, continues to lose relevance in Tamil Nadu in the post-Jayalalithaa reality. The party has seen multiple splits since the death of Jayalalithaa and is no longer seen as a credible alternative to the DMK. Despite anti-incumbency, the AIADMK failed to make credible gains in this election and has now ceded its space to newer players like Vijay's TVK. Internal squabbles and alliance missteps also hurt the Palaniswami-led outfit in this election.

OPPOSITION BLOC

Finally, it was the broader opposition which suffered the biggest setback in the poll. Since BJP's Lok Sabha tumble in 2024, the opposition has collectively failed to capitilise on its brief momentum and convert it into credible gains. The Congress failed to win Haryana in 2024 despite strong anti-incumbency. Later, the MVA failed to wrest Maharashtra from BJP-Shiv Sena combine. The AAP lost Delhi to BJP in 2025. The Mahagathbandhan was brushed aside by NDA in Bihar later the same year. And now, BJP has wrested control of West Bengal from Mamata, who was seen as the strongest symbol of defiance to the NDA.

Gogoi swept away in Himanta tsunami in Assam

DISPUR

The ruling NDA stormed into power in Assam for the third time in a row after securing majority with the alliance winning 102 seats, more than the halfway mark of 68 in the 126-member Assembly, on Monday.

The Congress-led Opposition alliance failed to stop a hat-trick for the BJP-led NDA. With the Congress was able to secure only 21 seats, Assam poll in-charge Bhanwar Jitendra Singh stepped down from his post, taking "full responsibility" for poll debacle. Assam Chief Minister and BJP leader Himanta Biswa Sarma (1,27,151) defeated Congress' Bidisha Neog (37,717) by a margin of 89,434 votes Jalukbari seat.

Sarma thanked the people and urged "good" Hindu Congress leaders to join the BJP to secure the state's future and fight the "aggression" of "Bangladeshi Miyas".

FAILS TO RECLAIM LEGACY

Gaurav Gogoi came to Jorhat carrying his father's legacy, his party's hopes and the title of chief ministerial candidate. He left having lost by more than 23,000 votes to BJP incumbent Hitendra Nath Goswami, and with the Congress headed for its third consecutive defeat in Assam. The result is a personal blow as much as a political one. The 43-year-old three-time MP and Deputy Leader of the Congress in the Lok Sabha had staked his state-level debut on Jorhat, a seat his opponent has contested in every assembly election since 1991. Goswami, who represents a prominent local family and commands deep-rooted goodwill in the constituency, switched to the BJP in 2014 and has held the seat ever since.

PDO Assn submits memorandum to ZP CEO, seeks justice

MYSURU

The District Unit of the PDO (Panchayat Development Officers) Association submitted a memorandum to the Chief Executive Officer (CEO) of the Zilla Panchayat in Mysuru on Monday, urging justice in connection with the recent suicide of PDO Mukta Hussain Karadigudda in Gadag district.

In the memorandum, the association demanded that such unfortunate incidents should not recur in the future and called for a high-level investigation into the matter. They also urged the government to extend all possible support and benefits to the bereaved family.

The association emphasized the need to create a work environment free from undue pressure for PDOs across all Gram Panchayats in the state. Senior officials should act as guides and provide support rather than exert pressure and there is a need for an end to the practice of suspending PDOs for minor administrative reasons and insisted that investigations and disciplinary actions should be carried out within a stipulated timeframe.

Further, they sought proper implementation of committee reports and insisted that complaints lacking proper documentation should not lead to unnecessary inquiries. The association appealed to the authorities to seriously consider their demands and issue clear directives in favor of PDOs to prevent further tragic incidents.

Responding to the memorandum, the CEO S. Yashkumar assured that the government is always supportive of PDOs and they should not resort to extreme steps like suicide over minor issues and assured that senior officials stand with them. Their concern would be forwarded to the state government.

On this occasion, District President Prakash, former President Rukmangada, General Secretary Basavaraju, State Council Member Shivanna, Mahadevanayak, Gajendrakumar, Soumya, Mahammad Ishaq, Ganesh, and more than 50 PDOs were present.

"SWASTHYA SWARAJ" LIGHTS THE WAY

Community-led health movement gains momentum

MYSURU

A significant step toward strengthening rural healthcare was marked with the successful holding of the "Swasthya Swaraj – Our Health, Our Action Plan Campaign: Digital Information Display Board and Health Diary Distribution Programme" in Hunsur. Organized by the GRAAM organization, the initiative aims to enhance community participation and improve public health outcomes in the region. Around 400 people attended the event.

Officials ficials from the Health Department, Panchayat Raj Department, and Women & Child Development Department, along with members of self-help groups and rural residents, actively participated. Discussions focused on strengthening rural health systems and encouraging community ownership in health initiatives.

n his keynote address, Dr. Basavaraj R. Shreshta, Executive Director of GRAAM, explained that the Swasthya Swaraj project is an action-research initiative being implemented in Hunsur (Karnataka) and Ganj Basoda taluk (Vidisha district, Madhya Pradesh). It is a collaborative effort involving GRAAM, the Health Department, RDPR, and the Women & Child Development Department.

He said while the Health Department provides treatment facilities, prevention and early care are primarily the responsibility of communities and Panchayat institutions. He highlighted the importance of strengthening VHSNC (Village Health, Sanitation and Nutrition Committees) and JAS (Jan Arogya Samitis). Citing an example where water scarcity in a government hospital was resolved through Panchayat intervention, he underlined the role of effective local governance.

District Surveillance Officer Dr. Nagaraj highlighted that nearly 60% of deaths today are due to non-communicable diseases. Lifestyle-related issues like diabetes, once prevalent in urban areas, are now increasing in rural regions as well.

He also pointed out rising cancer cases, noting that approximately 6 out of every 1,000 people are affected by cervical and other cancers. Strengthening VHSNC and JAS committees under Ayushman Health Centres will enhance awareness and accountability within communities.

Deputy Director of the Panchayat Raj Commissionerate, Krishna Kumar, praised inter-departmental coordination and noted that despite Karnataka's progress, challenges like malnutrition, NFHS indicators, and mortality rates still require attention.

GREENPEACE INDIA WELCOMES NGT DIRECTIVE

Urges South Indian states to act before air pollution reaches crisis levels

MYSURU

Greenpeace India welcomes the National Green Tribunal's recent direction asking Tamil Nadu, Kerala, Karnataka, Andhra Pradesh, Telangana, and Puducherry to prepare sector-wise implementation roadmaps within six months, linking public spending directly to targeted reductions in PM10 and PM2.5 levels. This is an important and timely step.

For too long, the dominant narrative has been that South Indian cities have relatively cleaner air and therefore do not face the kind of urgent political attention seen in North India. But evidence from our Spare the Air-2 report shows that this assumption is misleading. Air pollution is already a growing public health concern across several South Indian cities, driven by a mix of transport emissions, road dust, industrial pollution, waste burning, and other local sources.

Greenpeace India has consistently highlighted that cleaner average air quality figures can often hide local pollution hotspots, especially in dense urban and industrial areas where communities are exposed to harmful air every day.

Welcoming the Tribunal's order, Greenpeace India said:

"South India still has an opportunity to act before air pollution turns into a full-scale public health crisis. The experience of North Indian cities has shown the cost of delayed action. Southern states must not wait for pollution to reach those levels before responding. This is the moment for governments to move quickly, invest smartly, and put in place clear, sector-wise plans that deliver measurable reductions in pollution."

The NGT's direction is particularly significant in the context of the National Clean Air Programme (NCAP), where spending has often not been adequately linked to outcomes. By requiring states to align budgets with pollution reduction targets, the order creates a stronger framework for accountability.

Greenpeace India urges all southern states to treat this six-month timeline with urgency. The roadmaps must go beyond paperwork. They should identify major pollution sources city by city, assign clear responsibilities, allocate adequate budgets, and set measurable targets that can be tracked publicly.

South Indian cities do not need to repeat the mistakes that pushed many North Indian cities into a prolonged air pollution crisis. Early action can protect public health, reduce economic losses, and make cities safer and more liveable.

Dr. Jayamala recalls Dr. Rajkumar's role in shaping her career

MYSURU

Dr. Jayamala, President of the Karnataka Film Chamber of Commerce, fondly remembered Dr. Rajkumar as the guiding force who encouraged and nurtured her career.

Recalling her early days at "Raj Sangama" and "Girikanye Sambhrama" , a prpgram held here on Sunday, she said that she was born in Mangaluru and raised in Chikkamagaluru, and at the age of 16, Dr. Rajkumar recognized her talent and selected her as the heroine for the film Girikanye. "Had he not chosen me, I would not have grown to where I am today," she said.

Jayamala said at that time, Dr. Rajkumar was already at the peak of his career, and acting alongside him was considered a major achievement. "I feel fortunate to have acted with him in seven films.".

She further noted that regardless of who became Chief Minister in the state, they would make it a point to meet Dr. Rajkumar. She recalled that when M. Veerappa Moily and H.D. Deve Gowda met him, he had recommended her nomination to the Legislative Council under the artists' quota. However, it did not happen during his lifetime, but materialized later. Similarly, Parvathamma Rajkumar had wished for her to become the President of the Karnataka Film Chamber of Commerce. "I attained this position, but she was no longer there," Jayamala said emotionally.

Jayamala also shared an incident from the film Antha, directed by Rajendra Singh Babu and starring Ambareesh. She said she had initially refused to act in the song "Premavide…", but was later persuaded by Udupi Jayaram. "That film gave a new lease of life to all three of us and gained recognition in multiple Indian languages," she added.

She praised Dr. Rekha Arun, a gynecologist by profession, and her team, noting that none of them are professional singers. "People from different professions coming together to serve through music and organizing a musical evening in the names of Dr. Rajkumar and Dr. Puneeth Rajkumar is truly commendable," she said.

Among the guests present were Srinivas, brother of Parvathamma Rajkumar and film producer; Ayub Khan, Chairman of the Exhibition Authority; V.N. Mallikarjunaswamy, Joint Secretary of the Kannada and Culture Department; Nagaraj V. Bairi, President of Mysuru District Light Music Association; senior journalist Amshi Prasannakumar; Dr. H.P. Shobha, Medical Superintendent of K.R. Hospital; Golden Suresh; and Edayuru Sameevulla.

Songs from films featuring Dr. Rajkumar, Dr. Puneeth Rajkumar, and Dr. Jayamala were performed by Dr. Rekha Arun, Gururaj, Jagadish, Somashekar Manmohan Raj, Ganesh, Sudheendra, Nadamaya Prem, Vinay, Vadiraj, Narayanaswamy, Priya, Apoorva Narayanaswamy, Shanthakumari, Geetha Sridhar, Pranitha Prabhakar, Ratna Lokesh, Uma, Chetan Gowda, Somashekar, Rangaswamy, Raju, Roop Kumar, Sudarshan, Sundaresh, Vinay, and others.

Sabka Saath, Sabka Vikas, Sabka Vishwas: Message of the Bengal poll results

MYSURU

The fact that the BJP is coming to power in Bengal for the first time is proof of the trust that the people of the country have placed in Prime Minister Narendra Modi, Home Minister Amit Shah, BJP National President Nitin Nabin, and the party's organizational secretary B. L. Santhosh, said senior party leader and renowned neurologist Dr. Shushrutha Gowda.

He described the Bengal election results as a reflection of the message: "Sabka Saath, Sabka Vikas, Sabka Vishwas."

"The results of the elections in five states reflect the achievements of the central government, the need for double-engine governments, and the people's trust in the BJP's development mantra," he said.

Speaking to media, he opined that the election results are a response given by the people to the negative politics of opposition parties. The defeat of the DMK alliance in Tamil Nadu is a lesson given by the people to anti Hindu leaders who spoke against Hindutva. The results have clearly conveyed that those who speak ill of Sanatana Dharma will face defeat in the future.

Dr. B.R. Ambedkar must be remembered daily: B. Rangegowda

MYSURU

Joint Director of the Department of Social Welfare, said that Dr. B.R. Ambedkar, who authored the Constitution of India, was a unique visionary and should be remembered every day with reverence.

Speaking after inaugurating the Bhimana Amana and annual day celebrations held at the Dr. B.R. Ambedkar Government Metric Post-Basic Girls' Hostel located in Rajarajeshwarinagar here on Monday, he described Ambedkar as one of the most extraordinary personalities in India. Every day of his life was filled with struggle, and he faced numerous challenges and opposition. He dedicated his entire life to the people of India and fought for justice for those who were oppressed and marginalized in society.

Rangegowda said such a great leader should not be confined to any one caste. The students must remember Chief Minister Siddaramaiah and Social Welfare Minister Dr. H.C. Mahadevappa for establishing such well-equipped institutions. Awareness about the Constitution is being created by encouraging its study in schools and colleges. Students should read biographies of great leaders and newspapers, understand society, and work hard with determination to achieve their goals.

Assistant Professor Chandragupta from the Ambedkar Research Institute, who also spoke on the occasion, said that Jyotiba Phule was the first in India to strive for women's education. Ambedkar also fought to ensure equal opportunities for women. He added that the Constitution given by Ambedkar ensures that every citizen lives with dignity and security.

Assistant Director M.N. Janardhan, Shivashankar, hostel wardens Kamalakshi and Gayathri, and students Jnanavi, Jayalakshmi, Usha, Tejaswini, and Vinutha were present at the event.

The occasion was marked by bursting crackers and distributing sweets.

On this occasion, Apoorva Suresh, former city corporation member Jagadish, Dura Rajanna, K.M. Nishanth, Sreekanth Kashyap, Shivalinga Swamy, Anand, Ramachandra Rao, Adarsh, retired teacher Mahadevaswamy, Purushottam, Amit, and others were present.

"Dasara of lakhs or crores? Welcome to the grand festival of spending!"

MYSURU

If opulence had a mascot, Nadahabba Mysuru Dasara 2025 would be leading the parade on a golden elephant.

With a staggering ₹45.03 crore in total grants received and expenses touching dizzying heights, one wonders whether this is a cultural celebration—or a masterclass in creative accounting.

Let's start with the warmest "welcome"—quite literally. The Welcome Invitation and Space Committee alone accounted for a jaw-dropping ₹5.57 crore. Citizens are still trying to figure out whether they were greeted with gold-plated invitations or if the air itself was perfumed with sandalwood essence.

"I just got a WhatsApp forward as invitation. Maybe mine got lost in the ₹5 crore printing," quipped Ramesh, a shopkeeper in Mysuru.

Meanwhile, "Yuva Dasara" managed to consume an eye-popping ₹15.94 crore—clearly, nothing says youth like a budget that could fund multiple startups or fix half the city's potholes. "Maybe the youth danced on imported stages with diamond lighting," joked college student Megha. "Because we definitely didn't see ₹15 crore worth of fun."

Cultural programs, often touted as the soul of Dasara, received ₹2.08 crore, while Fine Arts got a modest ₹22 lakh—apparently, art is best appreciated on a budget, unless it involves LED screens and sound systems.

Even the elephants, the majestic symbols of Dasara, didn't escape the financial spotlight. The Forest Department spent ₹49 lakh on their maintenance. One can only hope the elephants enjoyed better facilities than most government schools.

"At least the elephants are being taken care of. We can't say the same for our roads," remarked auto driver Shivu with a smirk.

Then comes the pièce de résistance: Civil works costing ₹5.5 crore. That's right—more than the amount spent on the cultural programs held in front of illuminated Mysuru Palace. Whether this resulted in lasting improvements or temporary beautification remains a mystery best left to audit reports.

And let's not forget the ₹55 lakh air show, because nothing screams tradition like fighter jets roaring over a heritage city. "Dasara used to be about culture. Now it's about spectacle," sighed retired teacher Lakshmamma. "Next year, maybe they'll add a rocket launch."

On paper, everything looks perfectly structured—subcommittees, allocations, grants, and receipts. The government contributed the lion's share, while ticket sales brought in ₹3.21 crore, and sponsorships added ₹1.81 crore. But the real question remains: where is the proportional impact?

Citizens seem unconvinced.

"We don't mind spending on Dasara—it's our pride," said IT professional Karthik. "But this feels less like celebration and more like a spending competition."

In the end, Mysuru Dasara 2025 stands tall—not just as a cultural festival, but as a monument to extravagant budgeting. The lights were bright, the stages grand, and the expenses… even grander.

Because in modern Dasara, it seems Ravana isn't the only thing getting burned—so is the treasury.

Divided House falls: Saffron infighting costs dear in Bagalkot

SHYAM SUNDAR VATTAM
MYSURU

The Bagalkot bypoll result has exposed more than just a defeat—it has laid bare the structural weaknesses within the opposition BJP in Karnataka.

What should have been a closely fought contest turned into a one-sided victory for the Congress, with Umesh Meti securing a margin of over 21,000 votes, leaving BJP's Veeranna Charantimath far behind. The reasons are neither hidden nor surprising: overconfidence, internal groupism, and a visible lack of cohesive leadership.

To begin with, the BJP entered the fray with a sense of complacency, banking heavily on perceived anti-incumbency against the ruling government. However, elections are not won on assumptions. The Congress, led by Chief Minister Siddaramaiah, treated the bypoll as a prestige battle. The CM, along with a sizeable portion of his Cabinet, camped in Bagalkot, ensuring sustained voter outreach and organizational discipline. In contrast, BJP leaders merely went through the motions, conducting token campaigns that lacked energy, coordination, and conviction.

Factionalism within the saffron party proved to be its Achilles' heel. Bagalkot has long been considered a stronghold of Bagalkot City MLA and miffed BJP MLA Basangouda Patil Yatnal, and his suspension created a leadership vacuum that the party failed to fill. Senior leaders showed little enthusiasm, and there was no unified command structure to steer the campaign. The absence of a binding force meant that BJP workers themselves appeared divided, diluting the party's ground strength.

On the other hand, the Congress candidate enjoyed a significant emotional advantage. The sympathy wave following the untimely demise of sitting MLA H.Y. Meti worked in favor of his son, giving the campaign a personal connect with voters. But sympathy alone does not guarantee a landslide—what amplified it was the Congress's strategic mobilization and consistent messaging.

What is perhaps most alarming for the BJP is that this defeat came despite reports of anti-incumbency in the state. Losing under such "favorable" conditions raises serious questions about the party's preparedness for future electoral battles. Yet, there appears to be no immediate accountability. If the BJP high command refrains from seeking explanations or fixing responsibility, it risks normalizing complacency within its ranks.

The Bagalkot bypoll is more than a missed opportunity—it is a warning signal. Unless the BJP addresses its internal discord, strengthens leadership, and sheds its overconfidence, it may find itself struggling not just in bypolls but in the larger electoral arena ahead.

BDA to e-auction 75 prime sites across Bengaluru layouts from May 11

E-auction to unlock recovered land, meet demand from buyers and businesses

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

The Bangalore Development Authority (BDA) has announced the e-auction of 75 prime residential and commercial plots across the city, in a move aimed at unlocking land value and addressing demand from homebuyers and small enterprises.

The auction process will commence on May 11, with registrations open until May 22, 5 pm. Live e-bidding will be conducted in phases on May 25 and 26. The sites, spread across prominent layouts, are expected to draw strong interest due to their location and legal clarity.

According to the notification, plots are located in key BDA layouts such as Anjanapura Township, Arkavathy Layout, Banashankari 6th Stage, Nadaprabhu Kempegowda Layout and Sir M Visvesvaraya Layout, among others. Many of these sites were recently recovered by the authority following eviction of encroachments or favourable court rulings, and are now being brought back into the formal market.

All plots will be offered on an "as is where is" basis, requiring bidders to accept the current condition of the land. Officials emphasised that prospective buyers should conduct due diligence, including site visits and verification of layout specifics, before participating in the auction.

The plots vary in size and category, catering to both residential and commercial needs. Upset prices begin at approximately Rs 64,000 per square metre and exceed Rs 1 lakh per square metre in premium locations. To ensure a structured bidding process, the minimum increment has been fixed at Rs 500 per square metre.BDA officials said the initiative is part of a broader strategy to monetise reclaimed land while expanding access to authorised plots within planned layouts. The move is also expected to enhance transparency in land allotment through an online, competitive bidding mechanism.Interested bidders can access detailed information, including layout-wise site lists, eligibility criteria and bidding procedures, on the BDA's official website. Helpline numbers have also been provided to assist applicants. The upcoming auction is likely to attract a mix of individual buyers, investors and small business owners seeking legally compliant land parcels in well-developed areas of Bengaluru.

BDA seeks solution to Turahalli forest buffer zone deadlock

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

The Bangalore Development Authority (BDA) has written to the forest department seeking an urgent joint meeting to resolve the long-pending Turahalli forest buffer zone issue, which has stalled construction on hundreds of legally allotted residential sites.

In its communication, BDA highlighted that several plots in Banashankari 6th Phase layout, spread across Blocks 1 to 11, fall within the notified buffer zone of the Turahalli Forest. As a result, the forest department has denied construction permissions, leaving plot owners in limbo despite having purchased sites through official allotments.

A senior BDA official said that nearly 1,300 sites were initially affected by the buffer zone restrictions, creating significant hardship for families who had invested their savings. Following joint surveys and coordinated efforts, about 1,000 sites have since been cleared and removed from the buffer zone, allowing construction to begin. However, around 300 sites, covering approximately 18 acres along the forest boundary, remain unresolved.The authority noted that a drone survey of the forest and adjoining layouts was conducted on January 10, 2026, in coordination with forest officials. Based on the findings, a revised layout map identifying buffer zone sites was prepared and submitted to the department.With clearer data now available, BDA is pushing for a structured legal framework to address the remaining cases. It has requested the forest conservator to convene a high-level meeting involving senior officials, including additional chief secretaries from the forest, environment and related departments.

The museum will bridge the gap between the brain as a physical organ and the mind as the centre of cognition, emotion and behaviour.Expected to be completed within a few months, the museum will take visitors through a continuous, integrated journey rather than standalone exhibits. It will feature zones exploring brain anatomy, memory, decision-making, emotional processes, human evolution, and neurological and psychiatric disorders along with their treatments.The experience will span the entire human life cycle—from prenatal development to old age—while also examining how the brain interacts with society and technology. The exhibits are designed not just to inform but also to evoke emotional understanding.The museum seeks to educate people on brain science, reduce stigma around mental health, encourage early awareness of disorders and foster empathy through immersive depictions of real-life conditions and therapies. It will also house what is described as one of the largest collections of preserved human brains, adding research value to its public interface.

The National Institute of Mental Health and Neurosciences (NIMHANS) has commissioned private firm Tagbin to develop a large-scaleneuroscience-led immersive museum in the city, valued at approximately Rs 35 crore.

Tagbin has executed several large-scale experiential projects across India, including an aerospace initiative for Hindustan Aeronautics Limited in Bengaluru and the Pradhanmantri Sangrahalaya, along with smart tourism platforms in Ladakh.

VARUNA MITRA HELPLINE BRACES FOR SURGE AS DROUGHT FEARS RISE

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

With over 50 lakh calls logged in the past three years, Karnataka's farmer support line Varuna Mitra is preparing for a sharp spike in queries amid concerns of erratic rainfall and a possible drought year.

Operated by the Karnataka State Natural Disaster Monitoring Centre (KSNDMC), the helpline currently handles 4,000 to 5,000 calls daily. Officials expect this number to rise to nearly 15,000 calls a day in June, as farmers seek weather guidance during the crucial sowing season.

Launched in 2011, the service provides medium-term weather forecasts using inputs from ISRO Space Applications Centre. It saw record usage in 2023 when Karnataka experienced drought-like conditions due to deficient rainfall.

KSNDMC Director M.S. Divakara said weather conditions remained neutral through April and May this year, but an El Niño pattern may develop soon. "Historically, El Niño years have meant drought and below-normal rainfall for Karnataka. We will have more clarity after the India Meteorological Department issues its updated forecast post-May 15," he said.

The helpline operates with a compact team of around 18 staff, who collectively answer nearly one call every minute. To ensure efficiency, caller details such as name and location are recorded quickly, keeping interactions brief but informative.

Officials note that frequent callers often build familiarity with the staff, reflecting the service's reach and reliability. Many farmers, drawing on their own experience, call to validate their observations about cloud cover, wind patterns and expected rainfall.

Beyond weather forecasts, the helpline plays a broader advisory role. Linked to the World Bank-supported REWARD project, it provides guidance on crop selection, irrigation timing and fertiliser use across all 31 districts of the state. Experts also assist farmers with pest-related issues, connecting them with local agriculture and horticulture officers when needed.

A 2020 KSNDMC climate report identified over 88 lakh hectares in North Interior Karnataka as drought-prone, underscoring the growing importance of such services.As climate variability intensifies, Varuna Mitra remains a critical lifeline, helping farmers make informed decisions in uncertain conditions.

Labour dept to spend over Rs 8.7K per school kit for workers' children

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

The Karnataka Labour Department has approved a proposal to provide school kits worth over Rs 8,700 each to children of registered construction workers, reviving a welfare scheme that had earlier been scrapped amid controversy.The initiative will be implemented through the Karnataka Building and Other Construction Workers' Welfare Board, targeting around 1.3 lakh beneficiaries across the state. With each kit estimated at Rs 8,736 or more, the total cost of procurement and distribution is expected to touch Rs 115.8 crore. The State Cabinet cleared the proposal last week.The scheme had been discontinued in 2021 following allegations of inflated pricing and irregularities during its earlier rollout. Its revival comes after renewed demands from legislators and trade unions, according to Labour Minister Santosh Lad.Each kit will include 23 items designed for students from Classes 1 to 12, with separate categories for primary, middle and high school levels. The contents range from textbooks and grammar guides to thermos flasks, play dough, and sets of comic books in Kannada and English.To ensure procurement standards, the department plans to route the process through Mysore Sales International Ltd (MSIL), which will oversee tendering and supply. Officials said the welfare board will fund the scheme, while MSIL will manage execution to maintain quality and transparency.

The proposal also seeks a 4(g) exemption under procurement rules, allowing the department to bypass conventional tender procedures and mandate specific suppliers, including the "lekhak" brand for books. Authorities argue this will help standardise quality across kits.

Storm debris lingers as Bengaluru struggles to clear fallen trees

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

Days after a sudden thunderstorm lashed the city, large sections of Bengaluru continue to grapple with fallen trees and obstructed footpaths, even as authorities press on with clearing operations.

The intense spell of rain, which dumped nearly 11 cm within an hour last week, uprooted hundreds of trees across the city. According to the Greater Bengaluru Authority (GBA), a total of 476 trees and 1,171 branches fell between April 29 and May 3. While officials claim that 444 trees and 1,090 branches have been cleared, ground realities suggest otherwise.Across several localities, chopped trunks and heaps of branches continue to block pavements, forcing pedestrians onto busy roads. Authorities said their immediate focus was on restoring vehicular movement by clearing arterial roads, with footpath clearance to follow in subsequent phases.In Malleswaram, residents flagged a dangerously hanging branch that continues to pose a risk to passers-by. On 8th Main Road, a fallen tree has been cut but remains piled up on a newly constructed footpath, obstructing access to an apartment complex and a bank. "Children, students and senior citizens use this stretch daily. Now they are forced to walk on the road," a resident said.Similar concerns have been raised in Basavanagudi, where large tree trunks remain uncleared along BP Wadia Road, also damaging footpath railings.GBA Deputy Conservator of Forests G.K. Sudarshan said around 30 teams, including rapid response units and private contractors, have been deployed across five city corporations. "We had 28 teams for canopy management and were expanding to 66 when the storm hit," he said, adding that staff shortages have slowed the response.

KOPPAL

Various public organizations in Koppal have submitted a memorandum to the district administration demanding immediate cleaning and restoration of the city's main stormwater drain before the onset of the monsoon, warning of potential flooding and health risks.

A coalition of public welfare organizations submitted a formal appeal to District Commissioner Suresh B. Itnal on Monday, urging urgent action to clean and restore the main stormwater drain passing through key residential areas of Koppal city. The groups highlighted the deteriorating condition of the drain and warned that failure to act promptly could lead to severe consequences during the upcoming monsoon season.

According to the memorandum, the major drain, which carries rainwater from several important localities, is currently clogged with overgrown vegetation, plastic waste, and accumulated silt. In several stretches, the flow of water has been completely obstructed.

MAMATA VOWS TO BOUNCE BACK

MAMATA BANERJEE VOWS A COMEBACK DESPITE EARLY TRENDS SHOWING A HISTORIC BJP LEAD IN THE 2026 WEST BENGAL ELECTIONS

KOLKATA

West Bengal is witnessing a political earthquake as early trends from the 2026 Assembly elections suggest a historic shift in power. For the first time in fifteen years, the Mamata Banerjee-led Trinamool Congress (TMC) finds itself trailing significantly behind the BJP.

While the BJP has surged past the halfway mark by leading in over 170 seats, a defiant Mamata Banerjee has accused the opposition of "looting" over 100 seats, promising that her party will bounce back.

The current numbers indicate a massive breakthrough for the BJP in a state it has long fought to capture. The party is currently well ahead of the TMC, which is struggling to stay around the 100-seat mark.

Most alarmingly for the ruling party, their stronghold in the Presidency region appears to be crumbling. Political analysts note that the last time such a dramatic shift occurred against a sitting government, it ended the Left Front's thirty-year rule.

If these leads hold, it will mark the end of Mamata Banerjee's decade-and-a-half reign. However, the Chief Minister remains undeterred by the early data. She has voiced strong concerns over the integrity of the results in many constituencies, suggesting that the massive leads seen in BJP favor do not reflect the true will of the people.

As the counting continues late into the evening, the atmosphere across Bengal remains tense. While BJP supporters have begun early celebrations, the TMC maintains that the final tally will tell a different story of resilience.

Arjun Singh urges peace after BJP win in Bengal

BARRACKPORE

BJP leader Arjun Singh has appealed for calm after the party's election victory in West Bengal. He asked party supporters not to take revenge against Trinamool Congress workers or supporters. In a post on social media platform X, he said no violent or harmful behaviour would be tolerated. Singh urged workers to avoid attacking homes or shops and to respect the law. He added that voters have given the party strong support, and it should be used for development, not conflict. He stressed unity and peaceful conduct among all citizens after the result.

Mamata Banerjee labels the BJP's victory "totally immoral," alleging seat looting and intimidation while vowing a powerful political comeback

MAMATA SLAMS BJP WIN AS TOTALLY IMMORAL

KOLKATA

Following a dramatic shift in the West Bengal election results, Trinamool Congress leader Mamata Banerjee has launched a fierce attack on the BJP, labeling their projected victory as "totally immoral."

As the BJP moved toward a majority in the 2026 Assembly polls, a defiant Banerjee addressed the media, refusing to accept the outcome as a fair reflection of the people's mandate.

The Chief Minister made the startling allegation that the BJP "looted" over 100 seats across the state through illegal means. Beyond the seat count, she claimed she was personally targeted during the high-stakes counting day. Banerjee accused BJP workers and supporters of "gheraoing" or surrounding her while she monitored the procedure, an act she described as a blatant violation of democratic norms and personal safety.

"This is totally illegal," she told reporters, visibly frustrated by the day's events. She confirmed that her party has already lodged an official complaint with the Chief Electoral Officer (CEO), demanding an investigation into the conduct of the polls and the counting process. She argued that the atmosphere of intimidation made it impossible for a fair tally to be completed.

Despite the setback, the TMC supremo sent a clear message to her supporters and rivals alike. She insisted that the Trinamool Congress is far from finished and vowed to make a powerful comeback in the future. While the BJP celebrates its historic breakthrough in the East, Banerjee's stance ensures that the battle for Bengal's soul is far from over.

'Mookerjee's soul finds peace after BJP win'

KOLKATA

In a deeply emotional address following the BJP's historic victory in West Bengal, Prime Minister Narendra Modi paid a moving tribute to Dr. Shyama Prasad Mookerjee. Speaking to a jubilant crowd of party workers, the Prime Minister invoked the legacy of the Bharatiya Jana Sangh founder, describing him as the man whose relentless efforts ensured that Bengal remained an integral part of India.

Modi told the gathering that this electoral breakthrough was not just a political win, but the fulfillment of a long-held ideological dream. He remarked that Mookerjee, a towering figure in Bengal's history, had sacrificed everything for the unity and integrity of the nation. The Prime Minister added that with the "lotus blooming" across the state and the formation of the first-ever BJP government in Bengal, Mookerjee's soul would finally rest in peace.

The Prime Minister's speech highlighted the "Purvoday" vision, or the rise of the East, which he claimed has now become a reality. He thanked the millions of grassroots workers who braved years of struggle to bring about this change. By connecting the current victory to the state's historical roots, Modi framed the result as a restoration of Bengal's original identity. As the BJP celebrates ending fifteen years of TMC rule, the mention of Mookerjee has struck a chord with supporters. For many, the 2026 result represents the closing of a circle that began with Mookerjee's early vision for a prosperous, secure, and culturally rooted West Bengal.

Suvendu wins Nandigram hat-trick victory

NANDIGRAM

Suvendu Adhikari has won the Nandigram seat for the third consecutive time. He secured victory with a margin of 10,200 votes, according to election results. The win marks another strong performance for the leader in a closely watched constituency. Supporters celebrated his continued success in the region, where the contest has remained politically significant over the years.

Party workers said the result shows steady backing from voters in Nandigram. With this victory, Adhikari strengthens his position further in state politics as counting and final declarations continue across West Bengal.

Abhishek shrugs off slogans during historic loss

KOLKATA

Tensions boiled over in the streets of West Bengal as jubilant BJP supporters targeted Trinamool Congress (TMC) General Secretary Abhishek Banerjee with aggressive "chor" (thief) slogans.

The incident occurred shortly after election trends confirmed a massive defeat for the ruling party, marking the end of their fifteen-year dominance in the state. As the BJP surged toward a historic majority, the atmosphere turned increasingly hostile for the TMC leadership.

Despite the loud and mocking chants from the opposition, Abhishek Banerjee appeared to remain composed while addressing the media. He refused to engage directly with the protesters, stating that he would not let the slogans distract him from the unfolding results. "Let them give chor-chor slogans. I will not say anything," he remarked calmly. He acknowledged that the political situation had changed rapidly, admitting that "many things have happened" during this intense election cycle.

The TMC leader remained optimistic despite the daunting numbers, insisting that his party was still in the fight. He pointed out that counting was still ongoing in several areas and that "many seats are still on for us." However, the public jeering serves as a stark reminder of the shifting mood in Bengal, where the BJP's narrative regarding corruption seems to have taken a firm hold among voters.

As the night progressed, the "chor" slogans became a rallying cry for BJP workers celebrating their breakthrough. For Abhishek and the TMC, the results represent a challenging new chapter where they must navigate both a lost mandate and a vocal, energized opposition.

AMIT SHAH PRAISES WORKERS AFTER BENGAL WIN

NEW DELHI

Union Home Minister Amit Shah praised party workers after the BJP's victory in West Bengal. He said the win was made possible due to the sacrifices and struggles of many workers in the state. In a social media post, Shah said it was a historic result and credited the dedication of supporters who faced difficult situations but stayed with the party. He also acknowledged the families who stood firm despite reported violence. Shah said their patience and commitment helped secure the saffron flag's success. He called the victory a result of long years of hard work and dedication across Bengal.

SC issues notice to govt on Christian Michel's detention plea

NEW DELHI

The Supreme Court of India sought a response from the Central Government regarding a plea filed by Christian Michel James, the alleged middleman in the Rs 3,600-crore AgustaWestland VVIP chopper scam. Michel is challenging his continued detention, arguing that he has already spent more time in jail than the maximum sentence prescribed for his alleged crimes. A bench comprising Justices Vikram Nath and Sandeep Mehta has given the government four weeks to respond to the petition. This latest move comes after the Delhi High Court rejected his plea on April 8, upholding the validity of the extradition treaty. With the Supreme Court now stepping in to examine the legality of his continued "illegal detention," the case enters a critical phase concerning the balance between international treaties and domestic criminal law.

The Core of the Plea

Michel, a British citizen who was extradited from Dubai in 2018, has raised several legal points in his challenge

- Sentence Already Served: Michel contends that he has been in custody for over seven years. He argues that the maximum punishment for the offences he is charged with—specifically under the Prevention of Corruption Act—is five years.
- The 'Doctrine of Speciality': His legal team argues that under Section 21 of the Extradition Act, an individual can only be prosecuted for the specific offences for which they were extradited.
- Challenging the India-UAE Treaty: He has specifically challenged Article 17 of the India-UAE extradition treaty, which allows for prosecution for "connected offences." Michel claims this provision is being used to keep him in jail indefinitely.

Background of the Case

The AgustaWestland case involves alleged kickbacks paid to secure a 2010 deal for 12 VVIP helicopters.

KEY DETAIL	INFORMATION
Total Deal Value	Euro 556.26 million (approx. Rs 3,600 crore)
Estimated Loss	Euro 398.21 million (approx. Rs 2,666 crore)
Alleged Kickbacks (Michel)	Euro 30 million (approx. Rs 225 crore)
Extradition Date	December 2018

Lebanon Rejects Talks Without Ceasefire

Lebanon's Parliament Speaker Nabih Berri has ruled out any negotiations with Israel unless ongoing hostilities in southern Lebanon come to a complete halt, highlighting growing obstacles to international peace efforts in the region

BEIRUT

In a strong statement reported on Monday, Nabih Berri, one of Lebanon's most influential political figures and a close ally of Hezbollah, emphasized that ending the war must take priority over any diplomatic engagement. His remarks come amid continued violence despite a ceasefire agreement reached between Lebanon and Israel in mid-April, which has been extended into May but remains fragile.

Berri's position underscores the difficulty faced by the United States in mediating peace between the two sides. While Washington has pushed for diplomatic talks following rare face-to-face meetings last month, the situation on the ground has not stabilized. Israeli forces continue to maintain positions in southern Lebanon and have reportedly carried out demolitions in certain areas, while Hezbollah fighters have sustained their attacks against Israeli troops.

On Monday, the Israeli military issued fresh evacuation orders to residents in four additional villages beyond its declared security zone, citing alleged ceasefire violations by Hezbollah. The group, however, claimed responsibility for multiple operations against Israeli forces, stating it conducted at least eleven attacks in a single day.

Lebanon's government has reiterated its desire for a long-term arrangement that would end recurring cycles of violence and military incursions, though it has stopped short of advocating a formal peace agreement. Israel, on the other hand, insists that any durable settlement must include the complete disarmament of Hezbollah, a condition that remains highly contentious.

Meanwhile, Donald Trump expressed optimism about the prospects for peace, suggesting there is a strong possibility of an agreement being reached within the year. Trump has also indicated interest in hosting talks involving Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu and Lebanese President Joseph Aoun in an effort to push negotiations forward.

Despite diplomatic momentum, Berri's firm stance signals that without an immediate and verifiable end to hostilities, meaningful negotiations between Lebanon and Israel remain unlikely in the near term.

GENEVA

The World Health Organization said on Monday there was no need for panic and the risk to the public was low after three people died and three fell ill following a suspected outbreak of the rodent-borne hantavirus on a cruise ship in the Atlantic.

Netherlands-based Oceanwide Expeditions said it was managing a serious medical situation on a polar expedition ship, the MV Hondius, which was off Cape Verde, an island nation off Africa's western coast.

The cruise left Argentina about three weeks ago with around 150 passengers and stopped in the Antarctic and other locations on its way to Cape Verde, according to media reports. The risk to the wider public remains low. There is no need for panic or travel restrictions, WHO regional director for Europe, Hans Kluge, said in a statement.

Iran Warns US Warship

DUBAI

Iran's navy announced on Monday that it had issued what it described as a swift and decisive warning to prevent a United States warship from entering the Strait of Hormuz, one of the world's most critical oil transit routes. The claim comes amid heightened confrontation between Iran and the United States following ongoing regional conflict.

According to Iran's semi-official, missiles were allegedly fired at the warship near the port of Jask, located at the southern entrance of the strait, where Iran maintains a naval base. However, a senior U.S. official quickly rejected these claims, stating that no such strike had occurred. The conflicting accounts were reported by Axios journalist Barak Ravid, while independent verification of the incident remains unavailable.

The development follows warnings from Iran directed at U.S. forces to avoid entering the waterway. These warnings came after Donald Trump announced plans for the United States to assist ships stranded in the Gulf due to the ongoing war involving Iran. Trump stated that the U.S. would help guide vessels safely out of restricted waters to allow the resumption of normal commercial activity,

Iran has claimed it forced a United States warship to retreat from the strategically vital Strait of Hormuz, escalating tensions in the region, though American officials have denied reports of any missile strike on the vessel although he provided limited operational details.

In response, Iran's military leadership instructed commercial vessels and oil tankers to avoid movement unless coordinated with Iranian forces. Ali Abdollahi, head of Iran's unified command, reiterated that the security of the Strait of Hormuz lies under Iran's control. He warned that any foreign military presence, particularly from the United States, would face direct confrontation if it approached the area.

Since the escalation of hostilities, Iran has effectively restricted most maritime traffic through the Gulf, allowing primarily its own vessels to pass. This disruption has significantly impacted global energy markets, as the Strait of Hormuz is responsible for nearly one-fifth of the world's oil and gas shipments. The resulting supply constraints have driven oil prices sharply higher, with increases reported at 50 percent or more.

The situation underscores rising geopolitical tensions and the potential for further escalation in a region crucial to global energy security.

Meta Faces Trial over Youth Harm

NEW MEXICO

A major trial in New Mexico is set to examine allegations that Meta's social media platforms have harmed young users' mental health, potentially leading to sweeping changes in how the company operates. The case marks a critical phase in a lawsuit brought by Raúl Torrez against Meta Platforms, the parent company of Facebook, Instagram, and WhatsApp. The trial will determine whether Meta's platforms constitute a public nuisance under state law, a ruling that could allow courts to impose extensive operational changes. The lawsuit accuses Meta of deliberately designing its platforms to be addictive, particularly for younger users, while failing to adequately protect children from harmful content and sexual exploitation. This phase follows a March jury verdict that found Meta had violated consumer protection laws by misrepresenting the safety of Facebook and Instagram for minors. The company was ordered to pay $375 million in damages.

Now, the court will consider whether additional penalties and corrective measures are warranted. Prosecutors are expected to seek billions of dollars more in damages and demand structural changes to Meta's platforms. Proposed measures include stricter age verification systems, algorithm adjustments to prioritize safer and higher-quality content for minors, and the removal of features such as autoplay and infinite scrolling for younger users.

Meta has strongly contested the claims, stating that it has implemented significant safeguards to protect young users. The company argues that there is no conclusive scientific evidence linking social media use to widespread mental health issues and warns that some of the proposed requirements may be impractical or unfeasible. The case is part of a broader wave of legal actions across the United States targeting social media companies over concerns about their impact on youth mental health.

Australia Probes Antisemitism after Attack

SYDNEY

Australia has launched public hearings into the deadly Bondi Beach mass shooting, with members of the Jewish community sharing accounts of rising antisemitism and growing fears for their safety.

The inquiry, led by retired judge Virginia Bell, is part of a national Royal Commission examining the December attack at Bondi Beach, which left 15 people dead during a Hanukkah celebration. The hearings began on Monday and are focusing initially on the increasing prevalence of antisemitism across Australia.

Bell noted that the surge in antisemitic incidents in Australia reflects a broader trend seen across Western nations, particularly following developments in the Middle East. She emphasized the speed with which global conflicts can translate into domestic hostility, warning that Jewish Australians have increasingly become targets of hate simply due to their identity. Witnesses from the Jewish community described a worsening climate of fear and insecurity since the outbreak of the Gaza war in October 2023. Among them was Peter Halasz, an 86-year-old Holocaust survivor who fled Hungary decades ago.

US reaffirms support for Taiwan as President Lai makes surprise Eswatini visit

TAIPEI

The United States has reaffirmed its support for Taiwan, calling it a trusted and capable partner, as Taiwanese President Lai Ching-te undertook a surprise diplomatic visit to Eswatini amid rising tensions with China.

According to the United States Department of State, Taiwan continues to play a valuable role as a global partner, with its international relationships delivering tangible benefits to allied nations. The remarks came during the visit of Lai Ching-te to Eswatini, the only African country that maintains formal diplomatic ties with Taiwan.

Lai's visit, which began over the weekend, was described as routine by U.S. officials, though it followed reports that an earlier planned trip had been disrupted due to pressure from China. Taipei had alleged that Beijing influenced several Indian Ocean nations to deny overflight permissions for Lai's aircraft, highlighting the ongoing geopolitical struggle over Taiwan's international recognition.

China considers Taiwan a part of its territory and strongly opposes any form of official engagement between the island and other nations. Taiwan's government rejects this claim, maintaining its sovereignty and right to conduct foreign relations. The United States, while not formally recognizing Taiwan as a separate state, remains its most significant international supporter and primary arms supplier, a stance that continues to strain relations with Beijing.

Officials in Washington emphasized that such diplomatic visits are consistent with longstanding practice, noting that previous Taiwanese leaders, including Tsai Ing-wen, have also traveled to Eswatini in recent years. They urged that these engagements should not be politicized. During a state banquet, Mswati III voiced support for Taiwan's international participation, pointing out that the island's population remains excluded from global institutions such as the United Nations due to China's objections.

Russian Missile Strike Kills Five

MOSCOW

A Russian missile attack on the town of Merefa in Ukraine's Kharkiv region has left five people dead and several others injured, Ukrainian officials confirmed, as the war continues to inflict heavy civilian casualties. Ukrainian authorities reported that the strike targeted the town of Merefa, located in northeastern Ukraine, on Monday. According to regional governor Oleh Syniehubov, the missile hit civilian infrastructure in an area situated far from the active front lines, raising concerns over continued attacks on non-military targets.

The assault resulted in the deaths of five individuals, including two men and three women, while at least 18 others were wounded. Among the injured, four people were reported to be in serious condition and required hospitalization. Emergency responders were quickly deployed to the scene, where significant destruction was reported across the town.

Officials stated that at least ten residential homes were damaged, along with an administrative building, four shops, a car repair facility, and a food establishment. Images released by emergency services showed widespread devastation, including buildings with shattered windows and damaged roofs, a burning vehicle being extinguished by firefighters, and rescue teams assisting injured civilians.

Regional prosecutors indicated that the attack was likely carried out using an Iskander missile, a powerful ballistic missile system known for its precision and destructive capability. There was no immediate response from Russia regarding the reported strike. Moscow has consistently denied deliberately targeting civilians since launching its full-scale invasion of Ukraine in February 2022. However, thousands of civilian casualties have been recorded over the course of the conflict.

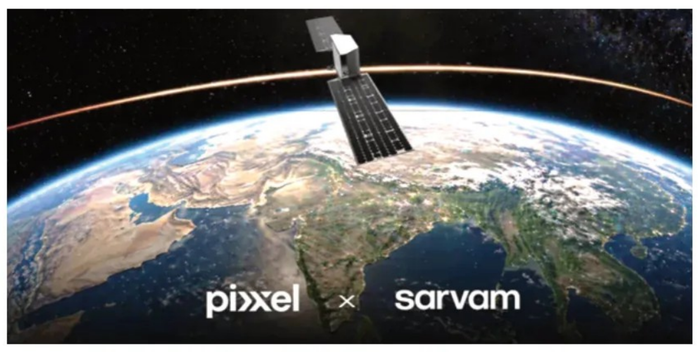
India to launch AI-powered orbital data centre satellite

India to launch AI-powered orbital data centre satellite through Pixxel and Sarvam partnership for advanced space computing

NEW DELHI



India is preparing to take a major step in space technology with the development of its first AI-powered orbital data centre satellite through a partnership between space-tech firm Pixxel and AI start-up Sarvam. The mission aims to bring high-performance artificial intelligence computing directly into orbit.

Under the collaboration, Pixxel will design, build, launch, and operate the satellite, while Sarvam will provide the artificial intelligence systems that will run onboard. The satellite, named Pathfinder, is expected to weigh around 200 kilograms and could be launched as early as the fourth quarter of 2026.

Unlike traditional satellites that rely on low-power onboard processing and transmit large volumes of raw data back to Earth, the Pathfinder will function as an orbital data centre. It will carry data-center-grade GPUs, similar to those used in advanced terrestrial AI systems, enabling real-time processing and inference directly in space.

The satellite will also be equipped with Pixxel's hyperspectral imaging camera, allowing it to capture high-resolution Earth data and analyse it in orbit. This capability is expected to reduce data transmission loads and deliver faster insights for applications such as environmental monitoring, agriculture management, disaster response, and infrastructure tracking.

Company officials stated that space-based computing can overcome limitations of Earth-based data centres, including constraints related to energy consumption, land availability, and scalability. The use of solar power in space is also expected to support continuous high-performance operations.

Sarvam highlighted that the mission extends its sovereign AI platform beyond Earth, enabling India-developed AI models to operate independently of foreign cloud infrastructure, strengthening technological autonomy.

The project will also test critical systems such as real-time AI inference, thermal control, power management, and space-based data workflows under extreme orbital conditions.The satellite is being developed at Pixxel's upcoming Gigapixxel facility, which is designed to scale production up to 100 satellites, marking a significant step in India's emerging space-tech and AI ecosystem.

India real estate investment hits $1.7 billion in Q1

NEW DELHI

India's real estate investment market recorded strong growth in the first quarter of calendar year 2026, with transaction volumes reaching $1.7 billion, according to a report by JLL India. This marks a 37% year-on-year increase, reflecting sustained investor confidence despite global economic uncertainties.

A key highlight of the quarter was the sharp rise in core asset acquisitions, which surged 178 per cent to $1.03 billion. The trend indicates a growing preference for stable, income-generating properties over higher-risk assets. Analysts say this shift reflects increased maturity in investor behaviour within India's property market.

The momentum is expected to continue into the second quarter, with core deals already reaching $1.48 billion, signalling sustained institutional interest. The office sector remained the dominant contributor, supported by strong operational performance and steady rental demand in key urban centres.

Experts from JLL noted that India's real estate market is undergoing a structural transformation, driven by resilient domestic capital and improving fundamentals. Institutional investment inflows have remained strong even amid global headwinds.

The sector has already witnessed record-breaking activity over 2024 and 2025, with total institutional capital inflows reaching $19.4 billion across the two years. A significant shift has also been observed in investor composition, with domestic institutions accounting for 52 per cent of market share in 2025, the first time since 2014 that local capital has overtaken foreign investors.

In Q1 2026 alone, domestic investors contributed 72 per cent of total investment volumes.

Real Estate Investment Trusts (REITs) and Infrastructure Investment Trusts (InvITs) played a major role, deploying $2.8 billion, which accounted for nearly half of domestic capital inflows. Private equity firms also contributed significantly to the growth.

Overall, the outlook for India's real estate sector remains positive, supported by economic stability, infrastructure expansion, and increasing attractiveness to both domestic and global investors.

RBI, IRDAI oppose bank entry commodity markets

MUMBAI

At a recent capital markets conference in Mumbai, Securities and Exchange Board of India (SEBI) Chairman Tuhin Kanta Pandey stated that the Reserve Bank of India and insurance regulator IRDAI are not in favour of allowing banks and insurance companies to participate in the commodity derivatives market.

He said both the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) and IRDAI (Insurance Regulatory and Development Authority of India) have expressed concerns and have not responded positively to SEBI's proposals in this regard. According to him, the regulators believe such exposure may not align well with the long-term nature of banking and insurance businesses.

Pandey noted that insurance firms operate on long-term investment horizons, and involvement in commodity derivatives could introduce risks that are difficult to manage within their existing frameworks. He added that the concerns raised by RBI and IRDAI are based on valid regulatory reasoning.

He also highlighted emerging risks in financial markets, pointing out that algorithm-driven trading systems can act faster than human oversight mechanisms. While artificial intelligence and digital platforms improve efficiency, they may also increase the risk of fraud or systemic vulnerabilities if not properly regulated.In addition, Pandey provided an update on the Central Know Your Customer (CKYC) 2.0 initiative, which aims to create a unified KYC framework across the financial sector. The project is being developed under the Central Registry of Securitisation Asset Reconstruction and Security Interest (CERSAI) with inputs from multiple regulators, including SEBI. The framework is expected to be finalised by July.He further reiterated that India's capital markets continue to strengthen as a key component of the financial system, supported by strong macroeconomic fundamentals and a growing investor base.

SEBI plans advisory on risks from Advanced AI

MUMBAI

Securities and Exchange Board of India (SEBI) is preparing an advisory to warn about risks linked to next-generation artificial intelligence tools, Chairman Tuhin Kanta Pandey said.

Speaking at a capital markets conference, Pandey explained that fast growth in AI is changing how financial markets work. While these tools improve speed and efficiency, they also bring new risks that can affect the entire system.

He pointed out that advanced AI systems are now being used to scan financial networks for weak points. Though such tools help detect problems quickly, they can also be misused to exploit these weaknesses on a large scale.

This makes risk management harder for both regulators and companies.

Pandey stressed that today's markets are closely connected, which increases the danger. A problem in one area can quickly spread and impact others. Because of this, risks should not be handled only at an individual company level. Even a small weakness can create wider issues for the market.

He urged financial firms to take responsibility by improving their cyber security systems. This includes constant monitoring, quick action to fix problems, and stronger protection against threats.

The SEBI chief said the upcoming advisory will focus on preparedness and response. It will not restrict the use of technology but will guide firms to adopt AI safely and responsibly.

He added that SEBI will continue working closely with market participants to understand new risks. The advisory will act as an early warning step, though no clear timeline or scope has been announced yet.

Indian banks ready for ECL framework implementation

NEW DELHI

Indian banks are well positioned to adopt the Reserve Bank of India's Expected Credit Loss (ECL) framework, with strong capital buffers expected to help absorb the initial impact, according to a report by CareEdge Ratings. The report highlighted that the banking sector currently maintains a robust Capital Adequacy Ratio of over 17 per cent and a Common Equity Tier I ratio exceeding 14.5%. These strong fundamentals provide sufficient cushion for the transition to the new provisioning system.

Under the revised framework issued by the Reserve Bank of India, commercial banks will need to shift to a forward-looking credit loss model. The new system, known as the Expected Credit Loss approach, is designed to improve risk recognition by requiring banks to estimate potential future losses on loans rather than relying solely on past defaults.The ECL-based provisioning norms are scheduled to come into effect from April 1, 2027, giving banks a transition period to adjust.

Inter Milan clinch Serie A title with clinical dominance over rivals

Relentless consistency and strong defence power Inter to comfortable title triumph

MILAN

Inter Milan sealed their 21st Serie A title in commanding fashion, capping a season of dominance with a 2-0 win over Parma that left them an unassailable 12 points clear at the top.

Under the guidance of Cristian Chivu, Inter built their title charge on defensive solidity and attacking efficiency, emerging as the most consistent side in the league. Their triumph was effectively assured weeks ago as rivals faltered, turning the closing stages into a formality rather than a contest.

The Nerazzurri's success was driven by a potent strike partnership between Lautaro Martínez and Marcus Thuram, who scored 16 and 13 league goals respectively. Despite both forwards missing parts of the season through injury, Inter maintained their attacking rhythm, finishing with an impressive 82 goals — far ahead of closest challengers Napoli.

Equally crucial was their defensive strength. Anchored by Alessandro Bastoni and supported by a disciplined backline, Inter conceded just 31 goals, the best record in the league. The balance between attack and defence allowed Chivu's side to sustain pressure across all phases of the campaign.

Midfield contributions also proved vital, with Hakan Çalhanoğlu adding nine goals and controlling tempo in key matches. Inter's high-pressing system ensured they remained on the front foot, overwhelming opponents and limiting opportunities at the other end.

While Inter surged ahead, their closest competitors stumbled. Napoli's campaign was disrupted by injuries to key players, while AC Milan struggled for consistency amid tactical changes under returning coach Massimiliano Allegri.

A defining moment came in April, when Inter staged a dramatic comeback win against Como, showcasing resilience even in adversity. By then, however, the title race had effectively been decided.

Unlike last season's dramatic finale, this campaign lacked suspense in its final weeks. Inter's relentless consistency turned the race into a one-sided affair, with the title sealed well before the final round.

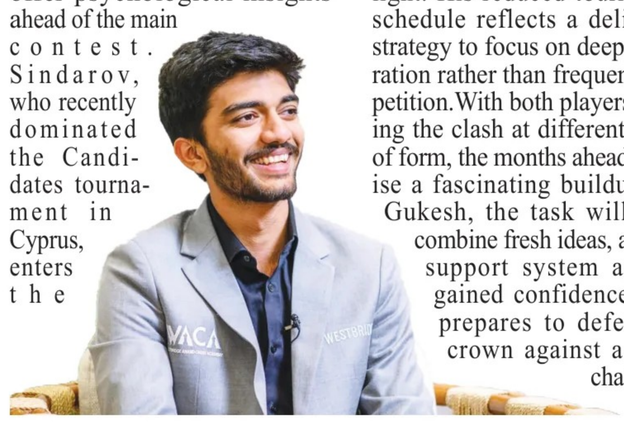
As celebrations erupted across Milan, Inter's 21st Scudetto stands as a testament to discipline, depth and a season executed with near-perfect precision.

Gukesh begins focused preparation for Sindarov title clash

Indian world champion starts training, plans new team ahead of showdown

CHENNAI

D Gukesh has begun specific preparations for his highly anticipated title clash against Javokhir Sindarov, marking the start of an intense build-up to one of the most intriguing battles in world chess. Gukesh's principal coach Grzegorz Gajewski confirmed that the training process is underway, though details remain closely guarded. The Indian, currently ranked World No. 19, has kept a relatively low competitive profile in 2026, focusing instead on preparation and recovery after a mixed run since winning the Classical world title in late 2024.The first glimpse of the champion-versus-challenger dynamic could come as early as this week, with both players set to feature in the Rapid and Blitz event in Warsaw. While it is unlikely they will reveal key opening ideas, even a brief encounter could offer psychological insights ahead of the main contest. Sindarov, who recently dominated the Candidates tournament in Cyprus, enters the match with strong momentum. In contrast, Gukesh has seen a dip in rating, losing over 50 points in the past year. His last Classical outing came at the Prague Chess Festival in March, and he has played sparingly since, including a Rapid event in Menorca.A crucial aspect of Gukesh's preparation will be assembling his support team. During his world championship victory, he was backed by a strong group including Pentala Harikrishna, Vincent Keymer and Jan-Krzysztof Duda. Whether the same core returns remains uncertain, especially as several of them have since climbed higher in global rankings.Despite the challenges, Gukesh has maintained a low profile, working quietly away from the spotlight. His reduced tournament schedule reflects a deliberate strategy to focus on deep preparation rather than frequent competition.With both players entering the clash at different stages of form, the months ahead promise a fascinating buildup. For Gukesh, the task will be to combine fresh ideas, a strong support system and regained confidence as he prepares to defend his crown against a rising challenger.



North Korean women's team to play in South Korea after eight years

SEOUL

In a rare moment of sporting engagement, a North Korean women's football club is set to play in South Korea later this month, marking the first such visit in eight years amid otherwise strained relations between the two Koreas.According to South Korea's Unification Ministry, the Pyongyang-based Naegohyang Women's FC will travel to face Suwon FC Women in the semifinals of the Asian Football Confederation Women's Champions League on May 20 in Suwon, just south of Seoul. The participation has been confirmed by the Asian Football Confederation, although North Korean state media has yet to officially acknowledge the trip.The match represents a significant, if limited, sporting exchange between North Korea and South Korea, whose relations have remained tense in recent years. The last time North Korean athletes competed in the South was in December 2018 during a table tennis event, part of a brief period of diplomatic thaw that also saw joint participation in the Winter Olympics earlier that year. For women's football specifically, this will be the first appearance by a North Korean side in South Korea since the 2014 Asian Games in Incheon. The upcoming fixture thus carries symbolic weight, even as broader political relations remain largely frozen.Ties between the two nations deteriorated sharply after 2019, when leader Kim Jong Un suspended diplomatic engagement with Seoul and Washington. Since then, Pyongyang has intensified efforts to curb South Korean cultural influence domestically, further widening the divide.Against this backdrop, the scheduled match is being viewed as a rare opening for people-to-people contact, even if limited to the sporting arena. Officials in Seoul have cautiously welcomed the development, emphasising the importance of sports in fostering dialogue and mutual understanding.

Chase Elliott wins at Texas, joins Reddick with multiple Cup victories

FORT WORTH

Chase Elliott held his nerve in the closing laps to win at Texas Motor Speedway, becoming only the second driver this season to register multiple victories in the NASCAR Cup Series.

Elliott surged ahead after a decisive late restart, using the inside line and a crucial push from teammate Alex Bowman to fend off Denny Hamlin. The Hendrick Motorsports driver maintained his lead over the final four laps to take the chequered flag, finishing just 0.407 seconds ahead of Hamlin.

"I knew if I didn't clear early, I'd be in trouble," Elliott said. "Alex gave me a great push, and that made the difference."

The victory marked Elliott's second win of the season and the 23rd of his career, putting him alongside Tyler Reddick as the only drivers with multiple wins so far this year. Notably, Elliott has now finished ahead of Hamlin in both of his victories this season.

Starting from 14th on the grid, Elliott steadily worked his way through the field, leading a race-high 87 laps. Behind him, Bowman recovered from an earlier spin to finish third, while Reddick, who has enjoyed a strong start to the campaign, came home fourth.

Hamlin acknowledged that the teamwork between Elliott and Bowman proved decisive. "It slowed my momentum and boosted his," he said. "Just one spot short."

MADRID

Jannik Sinner delivered a commanding performance to defeat Alexander Zverev 6-1, 6-2 in the Madrid Open final, securing a record fifth consecutive Masters 1000 title and reinforcing his dominance on the men's tour.

The 24-year-old Italian needed just 57 minutes to dismantle Zverev, turning a highly anticipated clash into a one-sided affair. With the victory, Sinner became the first player to win the opening four Masters events of a season, adding Madrid to his titles at Indian Wells, Miami and Monte Carlo, following his triumph in Paris late last year.

From the outset, Sinner dictated proceedings with precision and power. He broke Zverev early in the first set and raced to a 4-0 lead, conceding only five points in the opening five games. His aggressive baseline play and consistency left the German struggling to settle, as Sinner closed the set in just 25 minutes.The second set offered little respite for Zverev. Although he briefly held serve, Sinner quickly regained control, breaking in the third game and maintaining relentless pressure. Another break sealed the contest, with the Italian serving out the match comfortably to complete a dominant victory.The win marked Sinner's 10th triumph in 14 meetings against Zverev and extended his current winning streak over the German to nine matches. Since losing to Zverev at the 2023 US Open, Sinner has asserted near-complete control in their rivalry.Speaking after the match, Zverev acknowledged the challenge of facing the world No. 1 in such form. "Playing against him right now is extremely difficult. He gives us no chance," he said during the trophy ceremony. Sinner's remarkable run spans multiple surfaces, underlining his versatility and consistency at the highest level. His ability to seamlessly transition from hard courts to clay has set him apart from his contemporaries.

KKR spinner Varun Chakravarthy reacted on social media after actor Vijay's Tamilaga Vettri Kazhagam (TVK) made a strong debut in the Tamil Nadu elections. The party secured significant gains in its first major electoral contest, drawing widespread attention across the state. Chakravarthy shared an old picture with Vijay on Instagram, captioning it "Anna," which quickly went viral among fans. The spinner, a known admirer of Vijay, has earlier spoken about his fondness for Tamil cinema icons. The post came as TVK's performance sparked celebrations among supporters, marking a notable political entry for the actor-turned-politician.

Brazilian forward praises Carrick's influence as United secure Champions League return

Carrick has Ferguson magic, says Cunha after United's resurgence

MANCHESTER

Matheus Cunha believes interim manager Michael Carrick has brought back elements of the legendary Alex Ferguson era, helping Manchester United rediscover their identity following a strong run of results.

Cunha's comments came after United's dramatic 3-2 win over Liverpool at Old Trafford, a result that secured Champions League qualification with three games to spare. The Brazilian forward scored the opening goal, continuing his impressive debut season at the club.Carrick, who took charge after the departure of Ruben Amorim in January, has overseen a remarkable turnaround, winning 10 of his 14 matches.

The run has put him in contention for the permanent managerial role, with players openly backing his appointment."I sat on the bench with him, and the way he teaches everyone is amazing," Cunha said.

"He has the magic from the Ferguson times. He brings that feeling to us — what it means to be part of this club."

Carrick was part of United's most successful modern era under Ferguson, winning five Premier League titles and the Champions League. Cunha believes that connection has been vital in restoring belief within the squad. Despite securing a return to Europe's elite competition, Carrick has urged his players to remain focused.

United are still chasing a top-three finish and could end the season closer to the title winners than at any point since Ferguson's retirement in 2013.

"The Champions League without this club is not the same," Cunha said. "But it's not just about qualifying — we need to fight for titles."Cunha, who joined from Wolves last summer, has scored nine goals this season, including crucial winners against Arsenal and Chelsea.

His impact has justified the club's investment and added attacking spark. Off the field, uncertainty remains over the future of veteran midfielder Casemiro, though Cunha hinted that a final decision is yet to be made.

Djokovic, Sinner, Sabalenka lead player dissent over French Open prize money

NEW DELHI

Leading tennis players including Novak Djokovic, Jannik Sinner and Aryna Sabalenka have voiced strong dissatisfaction over prize money for this year's French Open, highlighting concerns about declining revenue share and broader player welfare issues.

In a joint statement released ahead of the clay-court Grand Slam, players criticised organisers for what they described as an inadequate increase in the prize pool. The total purse has been raised by 10% to €61.7 million, but players argue that this does not reflect the tournament's growing revenues.

According to the statement, the players' share of tournament revenue has dropped from 15.5% in 2024 to a projected 14.9% in 2026. With Roland Garros reportedly generating close to €400 million annually, players believe the current distribution falls well short of their demand for a 22% share — a figure they say would align Grand Slams with leading ATP and WTA events.

The issue extends beyond prize money. Players have also expressed frustration over a lack of progress on key demands, including improved representation in decision-making, enhanced health support systems and long-term pension structures.

While the list of names associated with the broader movement includes some of the sport's biggest stars, it has been clarified that Djokovic did not sign the latest statement, despite being part of earlier discussions on the issue.

The prize breakdown for the 2026 edition sees singles champions set to earn €2.8 million, with runners-up receiving €1.4 million. Semifinalists will take home €750,000, while first-round exits are guaranteed €87,000. Doubles and mixed doubles payouts have also seen modest increases.

However, players point out that last year's US Open saw a significantly larger 20% rise in prize money, further fuelling dissatisfaction with Roland Garros organisers.

With the tournament set to begin on May 24, the dispute casts a shadow over preparations, raising questions about the balance between commercial success and player compensation in modern tennis.

Modi lauds Vijay for TN blockbuster debute

Prime Minister Narendra Modi and Rahul Gandhi congratulate Vijay as his TVK party shatters Tamil Nadu's traditional political duopoly

CHENNAI

Prime Minister Narendra Modi reached out to congratulate actor-turned-politician Vijay after his party, Tamilaga Vettri Kazhagam (TVK), made a stunning debut in the 2026 Assembly elections. As early trends showed the new party making a serious impact across Tamil Nadu, the Prime Minister noted that such a strong performance highlights a healthy and growing democratic spirit in the region.

The Prime Minister praised the TVK for entering the tough world of electoral politics with such noticeable force. He suggested that the party's success reflects a shift in how people are participating in elections today. This high-profile acknowledgment from the nation's leader adds significant weight to Vijay's transition from the silver screen to the state assembly.

Responding to the wave of support, Vijay thanked his followers for their immense trust. He remained humble despite the victory, stating that his political journey has only just begun. He promised that his party would remain dedicated to the people, with a primary focus on creating opportunities for the youth and driving development across the state.

Experts believe this election marks a major turning point for Tamil Nadu.

For decades, the state was a two-sided battle between established giants, but the TVK has now added a fresh dimension to the landscape. Observers say this result proves that younger voters are looking for new voices.

With this debut, Vijay has not only shaken up the status quo but has also permanently changed the future of politics in the South.

RAHUL PRAISES VIJAY'S HISTORIC WIN

CHENNAI

In a notable political gesture, Congress leader Rahul Gandhi congratulated actor-turned-politician Vijay on his party's strong debut in the 2026 Assembly elections. Senior Congress MP Jairam Ramesh said the Leader of Opposition spoke to the Tamilaga Vettri Kazhagam chief after the results. The 2026 polls changed Tamil Nadu politics as Tamilaga Vettri Kazhagam made a strong entry, challenging Dravida Munnetra Kazhagam and All India Anna Dravida Munnetra Kazhagam dominance. The party gained strong youth support and became a major new force in the state. Congress observer Jairam Ramesh said Gandhi appreciated the campaign energy and public response. Despite losses, the message is seen as respect for voters' mandate and democratic spirit. Analysts say this may influence future alliances in Tamil Nadu politics. It also signals possible cooperation changes as TVK grows in influence across the state in coming years. Party leaders said they will continue engaging with all parties to strengthen democratic values in Tamil Nadu.

Kamal Haasan stands by Stalin after defeat

Kamal Haasan backs MK Stalin after the DMK's defeat to Vijay's TVK, praising his resilience and expressing confidence that the veteran leader will rise again.

CHENNAI

In a powerful show of friendship and political loyalty, actor-turned-politician Kamal Haasan has voiced strong support for MK Stalin following the DMK's unexpected loss in the state elections. The political landscape shifted dramatically as the newcomer party, TVK, led by actor Vijay, secured a major victory, leaving the long-standing DMK to face a tough road ahead.

Despite the setback, Kamal Haasan remained firm in his belief in the DMK leader's resilience. Speaking to supporters and the press, Haasan described Stalin as a "dear friend" who possesses a rare strength of character. He noted that Stalin is a leader who remains humble in times of success and unshaken when things go wrong.

"MK Stalin is not one to exult in victory. Nor is he one to wilt in defeat," Haasan stated during his address. He reassured the public that this loss is only temporary, adding with confidence, "He will fight again. He will win again."

The DMK's defeat marks a historic moment in the region's politics, as the newly formed TVK managed to capture the hearts of voters. However, Haasan's message focuses on the long game, reminding everyone that seasoned leaders often find their greatest strength after a fall.

This public backing highlights the deep bond between the two leaders. As the state prepares for a new political era, Haasan's words serve as a reminder that the spirit of a fighter is never truly defeated by a single election result.

Why Vijay succeeded where other icons failed

CHENNAI

Actor Vijay has achieved what other superstars could only dream of by leading his party, Tamilaga Vettri Kazhagam (TVK), to become the single largest party in Tamil Nadu. While legends like Rajinikanth and Kamal Haasan struggled to turn their fame into votes, Vijay's "blockbuster" debut has broken a 49-year jinx, marking the most successful transition from cinema to power since MGR in 1977.

Experts say Vijay's success came down to clear messaging. Unlike Rajinikanth, who hesitated for years, or Kamal Haasan, whose party remained restricted to cities, Vijay showed he was serious by quitting his lucrative acting career entirely.

By putting his three-decade career at stake, he convinced voters that his political journey was not just a "cameo" appearance but a full-time commitment.

Another masterstroke was his refusal to join hands with established giants like the DMK or AIADMK. By standing alone, he projected himself as a "clean alternative" to the traditional parties. This independence, combined with a decade of grassroots social work by his 85,000 fan clubs, gave him a massive head start in organizational strength that his predecessors lacked.

Finally, age played a major role. At 51, Vijay is seen as a "Gen Z" leader compared to the much older stars who tried before him.

With nearly half of the state's voters under the age of 40, his youthful energy and modern social media presence helped him capture the hearts of the new generation, turning a movie-star craze into a historic political revolution.

Former IRS officer leads big in Tiruchengodu

TIRUCHENGODU

A former taxman is now making a major mark in the world of politics. KG Arunraj, a former Indian Revenue Service (IRS) officer, has taken a massive lead in the Tiruchengodu Assembly constituency during the 2026 elections. Representing the newly formed Tamilaga Vettri Kazhagam (TVK), Arunraj's transition from a high-ranking government official to a popular political figure has become one of the most talked-about stories of the day.

Having spent years serving in the Income Tax department across Tamil Nadu, Bihar, and Maharashtra, Arunraj is no stranger to complex systems and public service. However, this election marks his first time on the ballot. Early counting rounds show him comfortably ahead of his rivals from established parties, a result that has stunned local political veterans.

His supporters believe his background in administration and his reputation for integrity are what resonated with voters. In a region traditionally dominated by career politicians, many locals expressed that they were ready for a leader who understands the technical side of governance. Arunraj's campaign focused heavily on transparency and professional management, which seems to have struck a chord with the youth and educated professionals in the district.

Driver's son leads big for TVK

CHENNAI

In a story that reads like a movie script, Sabarinathan R, the son of TVK chief Vijay's longtime driver, has taken a commanding lead in the Virugampakkam Assembly constituency. As the 2026 election results pour in, the 30-year-old newcomer is outpacing seasoned politicians from major established parties, proving that the state's political landscape is undergoing a massive shift.

Sabarinathan's father, Rajendran, has been a trusted aide and driver for the actor-turned-politician Vijay for over fifteen years. When Vijay launched his party, Tamilaga Vettri Kazhagam (TVK), he surprised many by giving a ticket to Sabarinathan. This decision was seen as a bold move to empower common citizens over political dynasties. Today, that gamble seems to be paying off as Sabarinathan holds a significant margin over his closest rivals.

The young candidate, who has a background in professional studies, ran a campaign rooted in local issues and his humble beginnings. His lead in Virugampakkam, a key urban seat, is being hailed by supporters as a "victory for the common man." The atmosphere at his campaign office is filled with joy, as volunteers celebrate what they call the "people's mandate."

Political analysts say this result is a testament to the trust Vijay's supporters place in his vision. By fielding the son of a staff member, Vijay has sent a strong message about loyalty and grassroots representation.

Annamalai hails big change in TN

CHENNAI

In a gracious show of sportsmanship, BJP leader K. Annamalai has officially accepted the people's verdict following the 2026 Assembly elections. As results showed a massive shift in the state's political landscape, Annamalai took to social media to congratulate actor-turned-politician Vijay and his party, TVK, for what he described as a "spectacular debut."

Annamalai, known for his aggressive campaigning, took a humble tone as the scale of the TVK victory became clear. "I bow down to the people of Tamil Nadu for your verdict," he stated. He expressed a sense of pride in his home state, noting that he was happy to see the citizens speaking in one voice to demand a new direction for the region.

The BJP leader highlighted that the results represent more than just a win for one party, they signal a "generational shift" in politics. He praised the voters for saying "no" to traditional practices like the buying of votes and dynastic rule. According to Annamalai, anyone who can bring about such a fundamental change has done a great service to the people of TN.

While the BJP-led alliance faced a tough challenge in this election, Annamalai's focus remained on the democratic process. He wished Vijay well, hoping the new leader would have the strength to fulfill his promises. As the state moves toward this fresh chapter, Annamalai's message underscores a rare moment of unity among rivals, acknowledging that the people's will remains the ultimate authority.

NDA retains Puducherry as Rangasamy wins

PUDUCHERRY

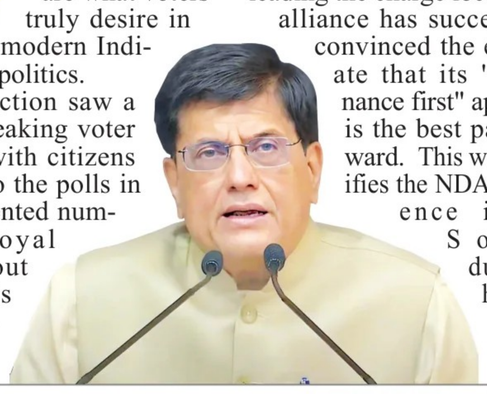
Union Minister Piyush Goyal has praised the National Democratic Alliance (NDA) for its projected victory in the Puducherry Assembly elections, attributing the success to a solid agenda of growth. As counting trends showed the alliance moving toward a comfortable majority, Goyal emphasized that the results are a direct reflection of the public's trust in the government's consistent focus on development.

Piyush Goyal credits the NDA's Puducherry victory to people-centric governance and growth, stating the record-breaking turnout confirms public trust in the alliance's stable, development-led leadership.

The senior leader noted that the NDA's victory stems from its "people-centric" policies, which have resonated with voters across the Union Territory. By prioritizing infrastructure and welfare, the alliance managed to maintain its stronghold despite a shifting political landscape in the region. Goyal's remarks underscore the alliance's narrative that stable leadership and a clear economic roadmap are what voters truly desire in modern Indian politics.

The election saw a record-breaking voter turnout, with citizens heading to the polls in unprecedented numbers. Goyal pointed out that this high participation reinforces the democratic mandate for the NDA to form the next government. He stated that the victory is not just about numbers but about a shared vision for a more prosperous and modernized Puducherry.

As the final tallies are confirmed, the NDA's performance in the Union Territory stands as a significant win for the central leadership. With Chief Minister N. Rangasamy leading the charge locally, the alliance has successfully convinced the electorate that its "governance first" approach is the best path forward. This win solidifies the NDA's influence in the South during a historic election cycle.



Oppn split helps NDA retain Puducherry

PUDUCHERRY

The National Democratic Alliance (NDA) has secured a clear path to power in Puducherry after the 2026 Assembly elections. Final counting trends showed a divided opposition unable to challenge the ruling alliance.

The Congress-DMK combine and the new party TVK failed to unite, leading to a split mandate. The NDA, led by Chief Minister N. Rangasamy, benefited from this fragmentation and moved comfortably toward majority. DMK won 4 seats and led in one more, while Congress managed only one seat in the Union Territory. Actor Vijay's TVK made a small entry by winning two seats, showing limited but visible presence.

Three independent candidates also won, adding to the mixed result across constituencies. Smaller parties like NMK had little impact on overall results. Analysts said vote splitting helped NDA win several close contests easily. Opposition leaders now face the challenge of rebuilding unity for future elections in Puducherry state ahead going forward.

18 SEATS SEAL NDA PUDUCHERRY WIN

PUDUCHERRY

The National Democratic Alliance (NDA) has crossed the majority mark in the 30-member Assembly, clearing the way to form the government after a close election. The AINRC has emerged as the leading partner, winning 9 seats and leading in 3 more, taking its total strength to 12. The BJP has secured 3 wins and is ahead in one seat, while LJK and AIADMK have won one seat each. Together, the alliance has reached 18 seats, well above the required 16 for majority. The result shows strong coordination within the NDA camp, even as smaller parties and independents split the opposition vote. Political observers say the fragmented opposition helped the ruling alliance maintain its advantage across key constituencies. With numbers now clear, the NDA is set to continue governance with a stable majority in the Union Territory going forward in Puducherry political landscape for the next term ahead.

Historic defeat ends left rule in India

The historic 2026 Keralam election loss marks the end of Communist state rule, signalling a major Indian political shift

THIRUVANANTHAPURAM

India enters a new political era as the Left Front lost its final stronghold in Kerala. For the first time in nearly 50 years, no Indian state will be led by a Communist chief minister. This shift marks the end of a long chapter that began with high hopes in the 1950s.

The Left's journey was once full of milestones. In 1957, Kerala made history by electing the world's first Communist government through a democratic vote. Later, the CPI(M) ruled West Bengal for a record-breaking 34 years under leaders like Jyoti Basu. Tripura also remained a fortress for decades. At their peak in 2004, the Left held 59 seats in Parliament, enough to influence national policies and major international deals.

However, the tide began to turn in 2011 when they lost West Bengal to the Trinamool Congress. This was followed by a 2018 defeat in Tripura against the BJP. As their presence in Parliament dwindled to just a few seats, Kerala remained the lone survivor of their legacy.

The 2026 election result in Kerala has finally closed that door. Political experts note that this is not just a loss of a state, but a sign of a changing national mood. Without a single state government to lead, the Left now faces its greatest challenge yet: finding a way to stay relevant in a rapidly evolving India. This verdict marks a definitive conclusion to a distinct and influential period in Indian democracy.

The former Wayanad MP emphasized that the incoming UDF government is committed to a fresh start, focusing on growth and opportunities that had been overlooked. He noted that the mandate gives the coalition the strength to implement meaningful changes and address the core concerns of the youth and working class.

"Kerala has always shown the way with its wisdom," Gandhi remarked, adding that he is eager to visit the state very soon to personally thank his supporters and celebrate the win. He stated that many people were unhappy with the ruling Left Democratic Front government, which led to a clear shift in support. Speaking during the counting of votes, Venugopal said the alliance used this public mood effectively. He also shared that the popularity of senior Congress leaders like Rahul Gandhi, Mallikarjun Kharge, and Priyanka Gandhi Vadra influenced many voters in the state. He added that people in Kerala showed strong support for these leaders. Venugopal further claimed that dissatisfaction with the government's work and allegations of corruption pushed voters to favour the UDF, leading to its strong performance in the state.

By moving away from previous controversies and focusing on people-centric growth, Kharge hopes to usher in a period of stability. New leaders emerge as Kerala chooses change

THIRUVANANTHAPURAM

The projected victory for the United Democratic Front (UDF) is being hailed as more than a simple change in government, it represents a major generational shift in Kerala's political landscape.

For decades, the state's politics were defined by legendary figures like K Karunakaran and Oommen Chandy. Today, a new wave of leadership is ready to take the reins.

As the alliance moves closer to officially forming the government, the focus has shifted toward the fresh faces leading the charge. Figures such as V. D. Satheesan, Sunny Joseph, Ramesh Chennithala, and K. C. Venugopal have been at the forefront of this successful campaign. Their rise signals a transition into a modern era of governance that aims to balance traditional values with the aspirations of a younger, more demanding electorate.

The massive win has sparked intense discussions across the state regarding who will be named the next Chief Minister. While seasoned leaders remain influential, there is a clear appetite for a leadership style that is responsive and transparent. Political analysts suggest that this mandate is a call for a more inclusive approach to solving the state's economic and social challenges.

With the era of the old stalwarts moving into the history books, the UDF now faces the task of fulfilling its bold campaign promises. The people of Kerala have placed their trust in this new guard, hoping for a government that prioritizes talent and growth. This election marks the beginning of a fresh chapter for the state.

The seat was keenly watched across the state. Congress candidate K. S. Sabarinadhan finished third. The result boosts BJP's presence in the assembly, where it has long struggled. Party leaders said support is growing among voters. Observers feel it may hint at changing voting patterns, though bigger trends will take time to become clear. In coming elections, parties will watch such shifts very closely.

Cong leaders secure massive victories in Kerala

THIRUVANANTHAPURAM

The United Democratic Front celebrated two major victories as veteran leader Ramesh Chennithala and rising star Chandy Oommen swept their respective constituencies. These wins have added significant momentum to the coalition's march toward forming the next government. The results highlight a mix of established political dominance and a powerful legacy continuing in the state.

In Haripad, senior Congress leader Ramesh Chennithala proved his lasting popularity by defeating CPI candidate TT Jismon. After 15 intense rounds of counting, Chennithala finished with 68,184 votes, securing a comfortable winning margin of 23,377. This victory reaffirms his position as a central figure in Kerala's political landscape and reflects the deep trust local voters continue to place in his leadership and experience.

Meanwhile, in Puthuppally, Chandy Oommen achieved a record-breaking win that signaled a total sweep for the party. The son of the late former Chief Minister Oommen Chandy, he defeated his CPI(M) rival, K. M. Radhakrishnan, by a staggering 52,907 votes. IPL 2026: RCB's Phil Salt flies to England for scans, return uncertain

BENGALURU

Royal Challengers Bengaluru have been dealt a fresh concern in IPL 2026 with opener Phil Salt flying back to England for medical scans on a finger injury, casting doubt over his immediate return to the tournament.Salt, who has already missed three matches, travelled to the United Kingdom for further assessment after sustaining the injury during RCB's clash against Delhi Capitals on April 18. The wicketkeeper-batter reportedly hurt a finger on his left hand while attempting a diving stop near the boundary, an effort that has since sidelined him during a crucial phase of the season.The England international had been one of RCB's standout performers early in the campaign, scoring 202 runs in six innings at a striking rate of 168.33. His aggressive starts at the top had provided the team with early momentum, making his absence particularly significant as the league stage intensifies.In Salt's absence, RCB have been forced to rework their opening combination. Youngster Jacob Bethell has been drafted in to partner Virat Kohli, but the results have been inconsistent, with the side struggling to replicate the explosive starts that Salt regularly delivered. Jordan Cox remains another option, though the team management appears keen to persist with Bethell for now.

Finger injury forces Salt home, leaving RCB reshuffling top order plans

The timing of the injury has complicated RCB's campaign, especially as they look to build momentum in the second half of the tournament. With competition for playoff spots tightening, instability at the top order could prove costly.While RCB have not officially disclosed the severity of the injury, Salt's return to England suggests a cautious approach from both the franchise and the England and Wales Cricket Board.

Lost wickets at crucial times, says SRH coach Vettori

HYDERABAD

Early momentum slipped away as SRH faltered at key moments

Sunrisers Hyderabad head coach Daniel Vettori admitted that timely wickets derailed his side's plans against Kolkata Knight Riders in their IPL 2026 clash.

Despite chasing a modest 165, SRH struggled to maintain momentum through the innings, eventually falling short as KKR executed their plans effectively. Reflecting on the game, Vettori pointed to the inability to build partnerships after a promising start as the turning point.

"We got off to a great start but couldn't capitalise on that. We lost wickets at crucial times," he said after the match. "160 is incredibly difficult to defend even if the wicket was a bit slow, but we had enough fight after the powerplay to give ourselves a chance."The chase, though within reach, saw regular interruptions as key batters failed to convert starts. Vettori highlighted that dismissals of top-order players halted progress just when acceleration was needed. "In T20 cricket, even if you have momentum, losing wickets makes it really hard to regain control," he added.

He specifically pointed to the departures of Travis Head, Ishan Kishan and Heinrich Klaasen as critical moments in the match. "Had any of them carried on, the result might have been different," Vettori noted.KKR's spin duo played a decisive role in tightening the game. Varun Chakravarthy led the charge with three wickets, while Sunil Narine provided strong support, applying pressure through the middle overs.

"Chakravarthy was able to take wickets even when we tried to put him under pressure early," Vettori observed, praising the opposition's discipline with the ball.

The defeat underscores SRH's ongoing struggle to maintain consistency in crunch situations. While the team has shown flashes of strong starts, the inability to sustain partnerships has cost them valuable opportunities.

As the tournament progresses, SRH will need to address these lapses and find ways to convert promising positions into match-winning performances, especially in tightly contested chases like this one.

Holder earns praise from Pujara for match-winning show vs PBKS

New Delhi

Jason Holder drew high praise from India's Test stalwart Cheteshwar Pujara after delivering a match-winning all-round performance in Gujarat Titans' four-wicket victory over Punjab Kings in IPL 2026.Pujara highlighted Holder's influence with both bat and ball, noting how the all-rounder has elevated Gujarat's balance in pressure situations. "The way Jason Holder has made an impact on this team has been impressive. His presence has taken the team to a different level," Pujara said, emphasising the significance of his contributions.Holder's defining spell of 4 for 24 played a crucial role in restricting Punjab Kings to 163 for 9 at the Narendra Modi Stadium. He removed key batters, including PBKS skipper Shreyas Iyer, as well as Nehal Wadhera, Marcus Stoinis and Xavier Bartlett, halting the opposition's recovery after an early collapse.Punjab Kings had looked in trouble at 47 for 5 before a counterattacking partnership between Suryansh Shedge and Marcus Stoinis revived their innings. However, Holder's timely breakthroughs ensured that the total remained within reach on a surface that offered some assistance to bowlers.In response, Gujarat Titans chased down the target in 19.5 overs in a tense finish. Sai Sudharsan anchored the innings with a steady 57, while Washington Sundar provided the finishing touch with an unbeaten 40, sealing the win with a six in the final over.

KKR stay alive, but top-order issues remain

CHENNAI

Kolkata Knight Riders kept their campaign alive with a crucial win over Sunrisers Hyderabad, ending the latter's five-match winning streak and moving to seven points. While the result offered relief, concerns around the top order particularly skipper Ajinkya Rahane's approach continue to linger.Young Angkrish Raghuvanshi led the charge with a composed 59 off 47 balls, while Rahane contributed 43 from 36 deliveries. On paper, it was a steady effort, but in the context of modern T20 demands, the tempo once again raised questions.Rahane, known for his calm and measured batting, has faced increasing scrutiny over his strike rate and intent. Earlier this season, he brushed aside criticism, asserting that his overall IPL numbers stand strong. However, his returns in IPL 2026 suggest otherwise. With a strike rate of 131.41, he remains among the slowest openers this season, second only to Ruturaj Gaikwad.The inconsistency in KKR's opening combinations has compounded the issue. The side has rotated between Rahane, Tim Seifert and Finn Allen, before promoting Sunil Narine to the top, reflecting a lack of clarity in approach.

Rahane's domestic form had hinted at a resurgence. He entered the IPL on the back of strong Syed Mushtaq Ali Trophy campaigns, boasting strike rates above 160 in successive seasons. Yet, that fluency has not translated to the IPL stage this year.While his powerplay numbers since IPL 2023 — 619 runs at a strike rate of 159.5 — appear solid, the momentum often dips through the middle and death overs. In a format increasingly defined by sustained aggression, such fluctuations can prove costly.KKR remain in contention, with five matches left to play. A clean sweep could secure a playoff berth, but that would require sharper intent at the top. The spotlight, inevitably, remains on Rahane — and whether he can adapt before it impacts KKR's season decisively.

SRK hails Narine after 200-wicket milestone in KKR's win over SRH

MUMBAI

Shah Rukh Khan paid an emotional tribute to Sunil Narine after the all-rounder scripted history during Kolkata Knight Riders' dominant win over Sunrisers Hyderabad in IPL 2026.

Narine reached the landmark of 200 IPL wickets, becoming only the third bowler to achieve the feat and the first overseas player to do so for a single franchise. His spell of 2/31 played a key role in restricting SRH, helping KKR chase down the target comfortably.

Taking to social media, the KKR co-owner lauded Narine's long-standing contribution to the team. Calling him a "magician," Khan highlighted the spinner's 15-season journey, multiple titles and deep bond with the franchise. His post quickly gained traction among fans, celebrating Narine's legacy in the league.

KKR's victory was built on a strong bowling comeback after SRH's aggressive start. The spin duo, led by Narine, turned the tide before the batters sealed the chase with composure. Since joining KKR in 2012, Narine has been central to the team's success, often delivering breakthroughs in pressure situations. His mystery spin and consistency have made him one of the most influential players in IPL history.

As IPL 2026 progresses, Narine's milestone further cements his status as a modern T20 great, with his contributions continuing to shape KKR's campaign.

Dhoni stays back in Chennai for rehab, skips CSK's Delhi clash

CHENNAI

MS Dhoni has not travelled with Chennai Super Kings for their upcoming IPL 2026 fixture in New Delhi, opting to continue rehabilitation for a calf injury.The veteran wicketkeeper-batter remains unavailable for selection and is yet to feature in a single match this season. Team sources indicated that while Dhoni is not match-ready, there is optimism about his return later in the tournament. "He should be available at some stage," a senior franchise official said.CSK are scheduled to face Delhi Capitals on May 6, followed by a crucial run of fixtures, including games against Lucknow Super Giants, Sunrisers Hyderabad and Gujarat Titans. With five matches remaining, the team's playoff hopes remain alive, currently sitting mid-table with four wins from nine outings.

SURYANSH SHEDGE UNFAZED BY PBKS TOP-ORDER CLUTTER AFTER GT HEROICS

AHMEDABAD

Suryansh Shedge may have delivered one of the standout knocks of IPL 2026, but the Punjab Kings batter insists he is not caught up in competition for places, choosing instead to focus solely on the team's success.

Coming in with Punjab Kings reeling at 47 for 5 against Gujarat Titans, Shedge produced a composed yet impactful 57 off 29 balls to lift his side to a competitive 163 for 9. His innings not only steadied the collapse but also revived hopes of a contest that seemed to be slipping away rapidly.

Despite the significance of his effort, Shedge downplayed any notion of personal milestones or a "race" for recognition. "It's not a race. We're here to win the trophy. I just want to give my 100 per cent for the team," he said after the match, underlining a mature outlook early in his IPL career.

His approach at the crease reflected that clarity. Rather than resorting to reckless aggression under pressure, Shedge assessed conditions, absorbed the early challenge, and built his innings with patience. Against a disciplined bowling attack featuring Kagiso Rabada and Mohammed Siraj, he chose his moments carefully before accelerating.A key phase came during a 79-run partnership with Marcus Stoinis, which shifted momentum back towards PBKS. Shedge's decisive burst arrived in the 14th over, when he took apart Manav Suthar, collecting 26 runs in a single over to bring up his half-century in just 24 balls.

Even so, the youngster remained self-critical. He admitted that having got set, he should have carried on longer to push the total further.

IPL 2026

Mumbai Indians beat Lucknow Super Giants by 6 wickets at Wankhede Stadium in Mumbai on Monday

Shubman Gill continues social media banter, teases PBKS after GT win

NEW DELHI

Shubman Gill once again made headlines beyond the field, continuing his now-familiar social media banter following Gujarat Titans' win over Punjab Kings in IPL 2026.

Soon after the victory in Ahmedabad, the GT skipper shared a picture alongside Washington Sundar and Sai Sudharsan, recreating a pose associated with PBKS. The post, captioned "Bas jeetna hai. Aava de," quickly drew attention online, sparking reactions from fans and adding to the growing narrative around Gill's playful digs at rival teams.

This is not an isolated instance. Gill has developed a pattern of posting subtle yet pointed messages after significant wins. Earlier in the season, following a victory over Chennai Super Kings at Chepauk, he shared a picture holding the iconic yellow whistle — a symbol synonymous with CSK's "Whistle Podu" culture — with the caption "Nandri Chennai." The gesture was widely interpreted as a cheeky nod to the opposition.

A similar moment followed GT's win against Royal Challengers Bengaluru, where Gill posted a picture featuring Virat Kohli with a caption that many saw as a clever twist on RCB's "Play Bold" tagline.

The trend has turned Gill's social media presence into a post-match extension of on-field rivalries — understated, but effective in generating buzz. While some fans enjoy the humour and confidence, others feel the line between banter and provocation is being tested. Either way, Gill appears aware of the impact.On the field, the contest against PBKS was far from straightforward. Gujarat Titans restricted Punjab Kings to 163 for 9 after reducing them to 47 for 5, with a strong bowling performance led by Jason Holder. A counterattack from Suryansh Shedge and support from Marcus Stoinis helped PBKS recover.In response, GT chased down the target with one ball to spare, finishing at 167 for 6. Sudharsan anchored the innings, while Sundar's unbeaten 40 proved decisive in a tense finish.Gill's post-match antics ensured the conversation didn't end with the final ball, keeping rivalries alive in the digital arena as well.
